PREFACE.

Thomas de Brantyngham was the Eighteenth Bishop of Exeter.

We know very little of his early years or of the history of his Family.[1] He was one of the sons, apparently the second son, of John de Brantyngham, who derived his surname from Brantyngham in the East Riding of Yorkshire. We do not know his mother's name or the date of his birth, or his age at the time of his death. And, as far as can be ascertained, he is not mentioned in any record till the year 1361, when he occurs as Treasurer of Calais and of the County of Guisnes. We know, however, on his own testimony, that his earlier years were spent at Court; for he tells us, in his Deed of Appropriation of the Church of Morthoe to the Dean and Chapter (dated on the 8th of July, 1379, and preserved in their Archives), that, when he was quite a young man and until he was promoted to the Episcopate—ab adolescencia nostra usque ad statum gradus Episcopalis—he had been employed continuously "in the service of Edward the Third, the late King, and his Consort, Queen Philippa, in their Royal Hall." And it appears from the Issue-Roll of the year 1370 that he had been, for a time, Keeper of the Wardrobe.[2] In June, 1369, he was appointed Treasurer of the Exchequer; and in the following month he was elected Bishop of Hereford; but, the Pope having provided William de Courtenay to that See, his Election was set aside.

He was, however, soon afterwards, elected to the Bishoprick of Exeter. No record of this Election is known to exist; but that it took place is certain, for Pope Urban refers to him as "the Elect of Exeter" in his Bull,[3] dated on the 5th of March, 1369-70, in which he informed him that he had quite recently[4] provided him to the See. This was, certainly, not, as Dr. Oliver says, "to waive all claim to provision": the Pope accepted and confirmed the choice made by the Chapter of Exeter, and "provided" accordingly; the King, we cannot doubt, using his influence on behalf of his faithful servant. In the same Bull the Pope tells the Elect that, as a special act of favour, he complies with his petition that he should be permitted to choose his own Consecrator, and to nominate the two or three assisting Bishops.[1]

[4] The word used is "nuper." The actual date was only the day before, the 4th of March, as we learn from Cardinal Simon de Langham's letter to Brantyngham, dated at Rome on the 17th of that month (see page 221).

He was consecrated, in the Chapel of the Manor of Stepney, on Sunday the 12th of May, 1370, by Simon de Sudbury, Bishop of London,[2] the assisting Prelates being Geoffrey, Archbishop of Damascus, and John, Bishop of Ayobana.[3] The Temporalities were restored to him on the 16th of May.[4]

Brantyngham, like Stapeldon, was a Statesman-Bishop, a fact which cannot be regarded as otherwise than a misfortune for his Diocese, especially when we bear in mind the absolute devotion of his great predecessor to his proper work as a Bishop throughout his long Episcopate, the memory of which and the marked contrast between the two men must have caused the change to be keenly felt, as for more than a year after his Consecration he was absent from his Diocese, detained in London by his official duties as Treasurer. The necessary Ordinations, five in number,[5] were held by William de Courtenay, then Bishop of Hereford, in the Parish-Church of Tiverton, where he was staying with his relatives in Tiverton Castle, close to the Church; the Bishop himself holding four Ordinations in the interval, two in the Conventual Church of Westminster and two in the Parish Church of Faringdon, in the Diocese of Winchester, greatly, we may be sure, to the inconvenience of the many candidates, who were forced to journey all the way from the Far-West for the purpose. Nevertheless, his biographer, taking a general view of his administration, is able to say, with truth, not only that "he commanded the publick confidence[6] by his character for discretion, moral integrity, and honourable conduct," but also that "the two Volumes of his Register abundantly testify to his talents for business and the interest he

[2] Oliver calls him "the Primate"—an unaccountable mistake. Sudbury was not translated from London to Canterbury till May, 1375.

[3] A Diocese in partibus infidelium, which has not been identified. Oliver attempts to solve the difficulty by calling him "Bishop of Bayonne." But the name of the then Bishop of that Diocese was not "John," and it is certain that our Bishop of "Ayobana" served as a Suffragan-Bishop within the Province of Canterbury as early as 1366, and died in London in 1381.

[4] See page 4.

[5] Of these the fifth was held in December, 1371, the Bishop, after his first short visit to his Diocese, having returned, early in October, to London, where he remained till May, 1372.

[6] See Dr. Oliver's Lives of the Bishops of Exeter, page 91.—He was appointed, on the 19th of November, 1386, one of the Council of Regency, with the Duke of Gloucester at their head, by which King Richard was deprived of all power till its dissolution in 1389.

took in the concerns of his Diocese." In those Volumes we are able to trace his movements, and to note all his more important acts, from the beginning of his Episcopate till its close.

He set out for Exeter early in May, 1371, passing through Winchester (where he spent several days) and Dorchester, and reaching Newenham Abbey towards the end of June. On the 29th of June he left the Abbey for Clyst, one of his Manors, within easy reach of his Cathedral-Church; and his first work, as in the case of his predecessors, was to visit and inspect his other Manors in that neighbourhood,—Crediton on the 4th of July, Paignton on the 15th, Chudleigh on the 20th, Crediton again for a few days in August, and Bishop's Tawton on the 20th of that month. A day or two later he started for Cornwall, reaching St. Germans on the 24th, and the little township of Marazion, at the other end of the County, on the 28th. On the same day he proceeded, by way of Helston, to his Manor of Penryn and the adjacent College of Glasney; and on the 1st of September we find him at Bodmin. He visited, also, his Manors of Poutone and Lawhitton, and on seven occasions admitted many young men to the First Tonsure, as he hurried along. Of course, all this must be regarded as a "flying visit" rather than a formal Visitation; but it enabled him to shew himself to large numbers of his people, who, remembering the strenuous times of Grandisson, must have been anxious, at least, to see their new Bishop; and certainly, his activity was conspicuous, for in the course of a fortnight he traversed the County in all directions, encountering formidable hills everywhere, and roads which we should not think worthy of the name. On the 9th of September we find him at Clyst, and from the 14th of that month till the 22nd at Exeter, where, on the 20th, he held his first General Ordination in the Cathedral. A few days later, he returned to London, where he remained till the middle of May, 1372; visiting in the interval his Manors in Surrey, Sussex, and Hampshire, and the King's Free Chapel of Bosham, of which, as Bishop of Exeter, he was Ordinary. On the 22nd of May we find him again at Clyst, holding his second General Ordination in the Manor-Chapel; and then, after spending a few days at the Palace, in the course of which he Visited the Cathedral,[1] he set out on a second and General Visitation,[2] in which he was more or less occupied for nearly a year. As on the former occasion, he did not spare himself; and those who know the country will understand how arduous his work must have been, when they learn that, between the 1st of June and the 31st

[1] See page 263.

[2] See page 265.—It will be observed, however, that he did not confine his Visitation-work to the customary centres, but moved about in all directions, shewing himself in many scattered places, as, doubtless, he felt himself in duty bound to do.

of July, he visited such widely severed places as Stokenham and Ugborough in South Devon; Plympton, Tavistock, and Tywardreath; Penryn and Marazion (a second visit); Cargaul, St. Mabyn, Lawhitton, and Wyke-St. Mary in North Cornwall; and in North Devon Hartland Abbey, Great Torrington, and Parkham. On the 18th of September he held his third General Ordination, at Exeter, and on the 18th of December and the 2nd of April following he ordained at Crediton.[1] In October he visited the Collegiate Church of Ottery, and dedicated a new Church at Dartmouth,[2] within the Parish of Townstal.

Early in 1373 he was obliged to return to his official duties in London. We find him at Westminster on the 2nd of May, and in his London-House, or at Faringdon, till the end of July, when he came back to his Diocese and immediately resumed his journeys to scattered centres of work in the two Counties. In May, 1374, and again in May, 1375, he ran up to London (if I may so say), but for a few days only on each occasion; and he was, practically, resident in the Diocese till the end of the latter year, engaged all the time, continuously, in the same arduous labours, shewing himself to his people, and making his influence felt, everywhere.

Thus far I have followed the Bishop's movements and indicated, in some detail, the extent of his journeys and work, work accomplished under singular difficulties and with manifold embarrassing interruptions; desiring to show how it was started, and persevered in with manifest devotion and diligence. It is not necessary, however, that I should thus deal further with this part of my subject, for all such details may be found by the Student, readily, as set forth in the "Itinerary" of the Bishop and in his Register of Ordinations. It will suffice to indicate, briefly, how his time was divided between his two great spheres of work. He was appointed Treasurer of the Exchequer, as I have said, in June, 1369; and I have given, above, the dates of his visits to London down to the beginning of 1375. Returning to Clyst, he Visited his Cathedral early in August of that year,[3] and then set out, almost immediately, for Cornwall, and devoted several months, continuously, to visiting a large number of places in both Counties, moving rapidly from place to place, as on former occasions. In May, 1376, he was summoned to London, where he remained till the middle of July, when he returned to Clyst, by way of Salisbury and Ottery-St Mary, to reside in his Diocese (except for a few days' absence in London in September and October) till the 27th of June, 1377, rather more than a year; but, this time, he visited few, if any, distant places, remaining at Exeter, and in its immediate neighbourhood, so as to be ready for any emergency. The King died on the 21st of June, and at the end of the month our Bishop proceeded to London, where he remained till the end of the year, and (except for occasional short absences on the business of the State) throughout the years 1378—1380. He had been re-appointed to the Treasurership on the Accession of Richard II in 1377, and the times were so critical that his presence in London was as necessary as ever. In February, 1380-1, he was released from an Office the all-absorbing duties of which must have sorely tried and embarrassed the Bishop of so remote a Diocese; and it is interesting to find that he at once returned to his proper and long suspended work, leaving London early in March, commencing his General Visitation in the Cathedral at the end of the month,[1] and resuming, after his customary manner, informal visits to every part of Devon and Cornwall, in which work he was engaged almost continuously till he was again summoned to London at the end of the year. Returning to Clyst in March he remained in the Diocese, except for three short (but, of course, necessary) visits to London, till the end of 1382. Though he was no longer Treasurer, the advice and help of so experienced and trusty a Statesman could not be dispensed with, and he was required to attend Parliaments and the Councils of the King; but his Register shews that he was most anxious that his Diocese should not be neglected; and, although his absences were frequent and involved long and costly journeys, he was careful that they should be as brief as possible, and, practically, his whole time was devoted to his Episcopal work till the end of 1388. On one of these occasions, when Parliament met on the 1st of October, 1386, and the Council of Regency referred to above, on which our Bishop was appointed to serve, was formed, he evidently left for Clyst as soon as he could get away, and there plunged at once, as so often before, into the arduous work of visiting his Diocese from end to end.[2] On the 4th of May, 1389, he was again appointed Treasurer, and we find him in London from about that date till the end of August. But he had had enough, and more than enough, of affairs of State, and he lost no time in securing release from them. He was, now, an old man, and infirm; and on the 29th of August he obtained from the King, not only release from his high office, but also Letters of Exemption for life from all attendance in Parliaments and in the Council-Chamber. With as little delay as possible he set out for his Diocese once more, never, apparently, to leave it again. Resting for a few days at Faringdon, on his way, he reached Clyst (probably early) in October, and remained there, or at his Manor of Chudleigh and at Exeter, till the middle of April, 1390, when he commenced what was destined to be his last Visitation. It occupied nearly five months, more or less continuously; and it is characteristick of the man that, his debility and unfitness for arduous work notwithstanding, he visited, as in former years, many scattered parishes; desiring, perhaps, to make such atonement as was in his power for his frequent and prolonged absences from his proper work. That this was no informal visitation, however, is shewn by an incidental reference to it—"pendente nostra Visitacione inexpleta"—in a document dated at Crediton on the 24th of September. And, now, his health, which had been of late precarious, finally broke down. He betook himself, immediately after the Visitation, to Clyst, his favourite abode throughout his Episcopate; and there he lived in retirement till, in 1394, the end came.

[1] On all these occasions large (but not unusually large) numbers were ordained; candidates did not come in crowds as at the beginning of Bishop Stapeldon's Episcopate. The two great plagues had seriously reduced the population.

[1] See page 442.

[2] It was an actual Visitation (see pp. 636, 646); but, as before, his journeys were extended in every direction.

The Cathedral, as we have seen, was practically completed by Bishop Grandisson,[1] but much important work still remained to be done, externally, and Bishop Brantyngham lost no time in setting about it. The cloisters were unfinished. They were begun by Bishop Grandisson, who certainly completed the north section, and probably the east section as far as, and including, the doorway of the Chapter-House. Nothing remains of his work, however, beyond a few deftly carved stones and some mutilated fragments, but enough remains to shew that the work was, undoubtedly, his. The great flying-buttresses of the Nave, six in number, intersected the northern site; but the resourceful architect overcame the difficulty by constructing arch-ways through each buttress. It is, indeed, lamentable that, except for a few traces of his masterly mode of dealing with such obstructions, a work so interesting and so beautiful as the fragments shew that it was should have been utterly and wantonly destroyed.[2] Unfortunately, our later Fabrick-Rolls give but scanty information as to the details of works in progress, and no mention is made of the Cloisters from 1371 to 1380. But the work was, probably, going on all the time; and it must have been well advanced by 1380, for it is recorded on the Roll for that year that workmen were employed "circa opus claustrale," and that eight fothers of lead were used "in coopertura novi claustri"; and on the [2] "Shortly after puritanism obtained the ascendancy, the cloisters were levelled, the most miserable hovels were knocked up with the ruins and gilded bosses, &c., and the Chamber, on the 30th October, 1657, removed from South-street 'the Friday cloth market for Serges and other Drapery' to this sacred spot. The desecration continued till December, 1660, when the hucksters and their packages were bundled back into South-street" (Dr. Oliver, in his Lives of the Bishops, page 247).

Roll for the following year we find mention of the purchase of "iron-work for the glazing of the windows in the Cloister." In the Roll for 1389-90 it is recorded that the work (which had, apparently, been suspended in the interval) was going on all through the year: the iron bars were fixed in the windows, and the pavement, consisting of 1,040 feet of marble, was laid. And now the work was again suspended, apparently; and this time for lack of funds. But the Bishop was anxious to proceed with it; and on the 7th of February, 1390-1, he appealed to the whole of the Diocese for help. He wanted money for certain repairs of the Fabrick of the Cathedral, and especially for the completion of the Cloisters; and he granted an Indulgence of forty days to all who, being in a state of grace, should contribute to the Fund which he was raising, or should remember in their Wills "the Mother and Mistress of all their Churches."[1] There appears to be no record of the result of this appeal; but the fragmentary remains of the south Cloister prove that that section of the work was executed in Bishop Stafford's time, and the Roll for 1397-8 shews that the executors of Bishop Brantyngham, exercising the discretion reposed in them by the Bishop's Will—"pro anime mee salute, prout eis melius videbitur expedire"—contributed five pounds "for stones to pave the Cloisters." His principal work on the Fabrick of the Cathedral-Church was, of course, the erection of the fine screen, extending across the whole of the west front, of which, and of the reasons for erecting it, I have already given an account, which need not be repeated here.[2]

Perhaps, the most striking incident in Brantyngham's Episcopal career was the Visitation of the Diocese in 1383-4 by the Metropolitan, William de Courtenay. It will be remembered that in 1332 Archbishop Mepeham attempted to visit this Diocese, and actually made his way to Exeter, where, at the very gate of the Close, he was repelled by Bishop Grandisson, who resented his interference as mischievous, for reasons which I have already explained in my Preface to that Prelate's Register.[3] Mepeham had no one to back him in these parts, and he was simply driven away,

[1] See page 713.

[2] See Bishop Grandisson's Register, Part III, page xxiv.—Canon Henry Blakeborne was a generous benefactor; and to him we owe the rebuilding, in 1390, of the great east window of the Choir, a noble work in itself, but incongruous in style. Archdeacon Freeman, in his History of the Cathedral (p. 63), refers in severe terms to its "later and inferior style . . . to the detriment of the building." He calls it an "unhappy insertion." "It is probable," he adds, "that Bitton's window here, no doubt of great beauty, had become much decayed; as we have notices in 1374—1377 of repairs about 'the front of the Church' which always in those days meant the east end." We, also, learn, from the Fabrick-Roll of 1392-3, that Blakeborne gave 597 feet of marble towards the re-paving of the Choir.

compelled to beat an ignominious retreat. But in Bishop Brantyngham's case the circumstances were very different: the tables were turned, in fact; for the Primate was not only backed up by a Papal Mandate, but he was a Devonshire man, a scion of the influential Family of Courtenay, being the fourth son of Hugh, second Earl of Devon; and he knew that, whatever might happen, he would be well supported. His father had died in 1377; but his nephew was Earl, and his mother, Margaret, a daughter of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and of Essex, survived her husband, and was living close to the Cathedral City. Courtenay and Brantyngham were very friendly in the old days; and when the latter, as I have mentioned above, was detained in London by affairs of State for more than a year after his Consecration, the former, who had just been appointed Bishop of Hereford, came down to Tiverton Castle on several occasions, and acted on behalf of his brother Bishop, holding several Ordinations for him. But in 1375 Courtenay was translated to London, and in 1381 to Canterbury. Like Grandisson, he was an energetick, not to say an exacting Prelate; and he lost no time in securing from the Pope full authority to visit the Province, and special permission to begin his Visitation, not in his own Cathedral Church and Diocese, but wherever he might choose to do so, and also to renew his Visitation of any Diocese, whether he had completed it or not, before visiting other Dioceses including his own. He had a particular reason, as we shall see presently, for obtaining these Apostolick powers and directions. The Pope's Bull was duly issued, dated at Rome on the 22nd of November, 1382; and on the 8th of January, 1383-4, the Archbishop directed his Mandate to Bishop Brantyngham, sending him a copy of Pope Urban's Bull, and informing him that, as he thought it would be advantageous to visit the Diocese of Exeter first, he was to be expected to arrive in Devonshire before Monday in the second week of Lent, the 7th of March. The Bishop was cited to appear before him on that day, and the Dean and Chapter and all the dignitaries and clerks of the Cathedral on the following morning, in the Chapter House.[1]

Whatever our Bishop may have thought of all this, he seems to have relied on the good-will of his old friend, and he hastened to fulfil the Mandate. It reached him, at Chudleigh, on the 30th of January; and on the 1st of February he directed his own Mandate to the Chapter, and on the 4th to the four Archdeacons and the Official of the Peculiar Jurisdiction in Devon, requiring them to take all necessary steps to carry out the Archbishop's Orders, and to certify the same to him before the 1st of March.[2] The Precentor, Hugh de Hyckelynge, in the absence of the Dean, certified for the Chapter on the 23rd, annexing a schedule containing a complete List of the Canons, Vicars, and all others who held any office in the Cathedral, in compliance with the Archbishop's request to that effect; and the Archdeacons also certified before the appointed day.[1] On the 3rd of March the Bishop certified the Archbishop that they were ready to receive him with due reverence and submission, prepared to obey him in all things lawful.[2] The Archbishop arrived, a day or two later, at the Manor-House, Exminster, his mother's abode, which he made his head-quarters throughout the Visitation[3]; and, finding that the Bishop was absent, he issued a Commission to his Chancellor, Adam de Mottrum, on the 5th, "ad continuandum negocium Visitacionis." The proceedings were commenced, in the Chapter-House, on Monday the 7th, when there appeared, before the Commissary, Hugh de Hyckelynge the Precentor, Robert Broke the Treasurer, the Archdeacons of Barnstaple and Totnes, and six of the Canons. They waited for the Bishop, but he did not come; and the proceedings were, therefore, adjourned until the 8th, and then until the following day.[4] On Monday the 14th the Archbishop came, in the morning.[5] He was on horseback, and was received, in solemn form, by the Clergy, Regular and Secular, outside Exe-Bridge. They conducted him to the Cathedral Cemetery, where he alighted from his horse and the Bishop met him—"Pontificalibus indutus, una cum Canonicis, Vicariis, et aliis Ministris dicte Exoniensis Ecclesie, capis indutis, cum Cruce precedente, . . ., et ipsum Dominum Archiepiscopum, osculata per eum Cruce predicta cum

[2] He wrote from Salisbury, on his homeward journey from London, where he had spent a few days; a hurried visit, rendered necessary, no doubt, by urgent affairs of State at a most critical time, but probably not altogether unconnected with some anxiety as to Courtenay's movements and intentions. It will be remembered that, under similar circumstances, Bishop Grandisson consulted the King and Queen, and secured their active intervention in his impending struggle with Mepeham.

On the 15th of March the Archbishop commenced his Visitation of the Dean and Chapter, and proceeded with it at intervals till the 18th of April, 1384.[1] He then issued a Commission (dated at Exminster on the 16th) to Adam de Mottrum, "ad cognoscendum et procedendum super detectis." But, meanwhile, the Bishop had become suspicious that his Diocesan rights and jurisdiction were being seriously infringed. He, probably, resented the terms and the manner of his personal examination when Courtenay visited the Cathedral on the 14th of March; for on the 18th, only four days later, he issued a General Mandate, directed to all his "subditi" throughout the Diocese, forbidding them to obey the Archbishop.[2] This, of course, meant open variance between the contending parties; and the Archbishop lost no time in replying to the Bishop's challenge; for on the same day he directed to the Archdeacon of Exeter his "Mandatum Inhibitorium contra premissa."[3] The Bishop, too, was on the alert; and on the selfsame day his "Prima Provocacio"[4] was affixed to the doors of the Cathedral, together with his "Prima Appellacio—a gravaminibus nobis et subditis nostris per . . . Archiepiscopum (salva reverencia ei debita) injuste illatis." These Instruments seem to have been torn down by the partisans of the Archbishop, for similar Documents were affixed to the doors on the same day, and on the 19th the Bishop issued a "Mandatum Inhibitorium ne quis evellat affixa hujusmodi."[5] Also on the 19th the Archbishop appointed a Commission "ad petendum et recipiendum Provocaciones et Appellaciones hujusmodi, et ad dandum Apostolos (i.e., Letters-permissory)."

[3] See page 60.—They shew the thoroughness of the Archiepiscopal Visitation. Courtenay was, evidently, a grand character, and he governed with a firm and determined hand. He was careful to place fully on record, in his Register, the proceedings of his Visitation, with the Archiepiscopal and Metropolitical privileges and immunities, for the guidance and protection of his successors.

But the negotiations made no progress, and the Archbishop, apparently losing patience, issued a Mandate on the 21st, directed to Hugh Bridham, Archdeacon of Totnes, and Canons Ralph Pylatone and John Cheyne, "ad citandum Episcopum super detectis in Visitacione personaliter responsurum, et in ea parte Canonicam correccionem subiturum." The execution of this Mandate resulted in a serious disturbance.[6] The Commissaries received it on the 25th and entered without delay on the delicate task assigned to them,—"Post quarum [Litterarum] recepcionem, dicto xxv die, ad Manerium de Clyst, dicte Diocesis, quod predictus Exoniensis Episcopus inhabitabat, equites simul accessimus, ut easdem Litteras vestras execucioni debite mandaremus; et, dum in itinere publico prope Manerium illud, ante horam Vesperarum, eramus, ut ipsum Manerium, causa execucionis hujusmodi faciende, ingredi volebamus, tam clericos quam laicos, familiares dicti Episcopi, cum diversis armorum generibus, in copiosa multitudine congregatos ibidem invenimus; quorum nonnulli nobis, ad exequendum Litteras vestras predictas sepius offerentibus nos paratos, ingressum et accessum ad dictum Episcopum penitus denegarunt, et nos propterea comminati fuerunt quod, si quis nostrum aliquas Litteras Citatorias ibidem exequi seu aperire presumeret, ipsius brachium protinus amputarent. Unde, quia prefatum Episcopum, propter potenciam dictorum suorum familiarium et resistenciam hujusmodi nobis factam, ac metum mortis, tute non potuimus nec ausi fuimus quovis modo citare, fugam abinde illico cepimus, et eorumdem familiarium, nos insequencium et nobis insidias undequaque parancium, manus temerarias vix vitare potuimus quin aut per ipsos precipitati fuissemus ultra pontes in ampnem, aut casualiter interfecti. Tandem, eodem die, nobis, usque ad opidum seu villatam de Topesham effugatis, tres de familia supradicta scutiferi, videlicet Willelmus Hughlot, Johannes Ufflet,[1] et Johannes Moundeware, alias dictus Boteller, obviam armati venerunt, et unum de scutiferis nostris, easdem Litteras Citatorias deferentem, Litteras ipsas ostendere, lacerare, atque ceram qua dicte Littere fuerant sigillate terribilibus insultibus inhumaniter commedere compulerunt invitum; quorum occasione et alias impediti secure non potuimus, nec ausi fuimus, prout nec audemus, Litteras vestras hujusmodi exequi cum effectu." The Archbishop had, of course, heard of these outrages, and he did not wait for the formal report of his Commissaries (which was dated, at Exeter, on the 4th of June), but proceeded to deal with the offenders at once; issuing, on the 29th of April, his Mandate, directed to the Precentor and Canons of the Cathedral, "ad denunciandum excommunicatos impedientes execucionem ipsius Mandati." This was speedily followed by a Mandate to cite the Bishop himself, "viis et modis," dated at Exeter on the 6th; with what result the Precentor certified, on the 21st, as follows,—"Cujus auctoritate Mandati vestri reverendi; quia dictum Venerabilem Patrem, vel Procuratorem ejusdem, invenire non potui, absque dilacione quacumque ad Palacium in Civitate personaliter accessi, ad citandum eumdem juxta exigenciam Mandati vestri memorati; ibique, coram Custode dicti Palacii ac aliis notis et familiaribus dicti Patris, Mandatum vestrum, ut mandatur, publicavi, et in die proximo tunc sequenti, videlicet Festo Corporis Christi [which fell on the 9th of June in 1384], in Ecclesia Cathedrali Exoniensi, in presencia Notarii Publici Ministrorumque ejusdem Ecclesie, ac aliorum testium infrascriptorum, eumdem Venerabilem Patrem, Publice Citacionis edicto per me publice proposito, ad comparendum coram vobis, dictis die et loco, cum continuacione et prorogacione dierum tunc sequencium et locorum [viz., on the first Juridical day, etc., after the 24th of June], prout dictum Mandatum vestrum reverendum exigit et requirit, peremptorie citavi ; tandem in valvis prefate Ecclesie Cathedralis Mandatum vestrum antedictum affigi feci, ut mandatur, adeo quod hujusmodi Citacio ad ipsius Patris noticiam verisimiliter valeat pervenire."[1] On the 25th of June the Archbishop resumed his Visitation of the Cathedral, - - "Recitavit viva voce, ibidem, quod inter cetera Statuta dicte Ecclesie erat statutum in eadem, et auctoritate Legati Sedis Apostolice roboratum, quod Canonici habentes in dicta Ecclesia Exoniensi firmas, si terminis in eo statutis firmas suas dicto Capitulo Exoniensi non solverent, ipsis firmis tunc essent ipso jure privati, et aliter Superioris arbitrio essent puniendi ; et requisivit dictos Decanum et Capitulum an hujusmodi Statutum fuerit observatum. Et dixerunt quod non ; quodque aliud erat Statutum quod Dignitates obtinentes in dicta Ecclesia et Canonici residentes deberent esse, singulis anni quarteriis, per xlvj dies in Missa et in mensa, juxta quantitatem Beneficiorum suorum in dicta Exoniensi Ecclesia. Super quibus Statutis dixit quod non fuerunt observata juxta eorumdem tenorem ; et super primo articulo requisivit dictum Dominum Exoniensem Episcopum, tanquam capud, ac alios supradictos Dignitates et Canonicatus ac Prebendas in prefata Ecclesia Exoniensi optinentes, an videretur eis expediens, et pro utilitate dicte Exoniensis Ecclesie et commodo, quod illud Statutum observetur ; quibus omnibus per eum singulariter requisitis, exceptis tribus, videlicet Hugone Bridham, Johanne Cheyne, et Roberto Braybroke, dixerunt quod sit ; qui, tamen, tres dixerunt quod illud Statutum non fuit observatum per lx annos ultimo elapsos ; et dixerunt quod ad illud Statutum, tanquam Statutum, non sunt astricti juramento. Quo ad secundum Statutum, singulariter requsiti, dixerunt quod convenit et expedit Ecclesie Exoniensi illud observari, exceptis duobus vel tribus qui dixerunt quod, singulis ebdomadis, Canonici residentes habebunt duos dies pro disportacione[2] qui volunt ; et, tamen, in singulis quarteriis anni tantum accipient pro dividenda ac si essent continue in Missa et mensa residentes. Subsequenterque idem Reverendus Pater, Dominus Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus, exposuit oretenus quod Cancelli Ecclesiarum eis appropriatarum in communi, vel ad Dignitates singularium personarum, quasi per totam Diocesim Exoniensem, vel sunt ruinose aut male cooperte et vitriate, vel alias male parochianis earum in Divinis deservitur ; qui ad hoc responderunt quod eorum Vicarii in dictis Ecclesiis, juxta earum Ordinacionem, tenentur dictos Cancellos reparare et sustentare ; et super hoc petunt quod eorum Vicarii vocentur responsuri. Et per dictum Reverendum Patrem contra eos in contrarium fuit allegatum quod porciones Vicariarum dictorum

Vicariorum sunt ita exiles quod ad hujusmodi onera non poterunt compelli. Qui responderunt quod, si Vicarii hujusmodi super hoc conquerantur, parati erunt stare juri et facere quod incumbit in hac parte. Et idem Reverendus Pater . . . . prefixit dictis Decano et Capitulo diem Sabbati proximo tunc sequentem, videlicet secundum diem mensis Julii, ad comparendum coram eo, in dicta Domo Capitulari, eum super premissis informaturi, ac audituri et recepturi in ea parte quod juris fuerit et racionis. Et, quia idem Reverendus Pater voluit, ut asseruit, cum dicto Domino Exoniensi Episcopo super concernentibus personam suam in detectis contra eum in Visitacione sua Metropolitica predicta colloquium habere, precepit dictis Decano et Capitulo ut Domum Capitularem predictam exirent; quibus recedentibus, dicti Reverendi Patres, Domini Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus et Episcopus Exoniensis, consenserunt et voluerunt quod Clerici eorum tractarent super juribus suis hujusmodi, et inde dictam Visitacionem Metropoliticam concernentibus. Et dictus Dominus Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus protestabatur, tunc ibidem, quod per tractatum hujusmodi noluit recedere a Processu suo contra dictum Episcopum Exoniensem faciendo, set in casu quo non concordaverunt prefixit dicto Exoniensi Episcopo diem Martis tunc proximo sequentem [5 July] ad comparendum coram eo, in dicta Domo Capitulari, ad faciendum, exercendum, et recipiendum omnia et singula que isto die Sabbati[1] esset in dicto Visitacionis negocio facturus et recepturus. Et prefixit, tunc ibidem, Magistris Willelmo Payne et Edmundo Malmeshulle, Registrario dicti Exoniensis Episcopi, diem secundum mensis Julii predicti ad comparendum coram eo, loco predicto, super impedimento Visitacionis sue hujusmodi Metropolitice et Jurisdiccionis Ecclesiastice, ac super contemptu, responsuri, et juri in omnibus parituri."[2]

At this time there seemed to be little, or no, prospect of peace between the contending parties. Already the Archbishop and the Bishop had held four simultaneous Ordinations[1] within the Diocese. And on the 30th of June the former, having on the 31st of May secured a Letter from the King, wrote to the Pope, and on the 1st of July to the Cardinal, craving their intervention.[2] And then, unexpectedly and even suddenly, the end came. The Bishop submitted, and these letters were not sent—"propter concordiam subsequentem." The next Entry in Courtenay's Register is a copy of the "Concordia finalis[3] inter Dominum Archiepiscopum et Episcopum Exoniensem." This Document is of great interest, and must be printed at length,—

"Secundo die mensis Julii, Anno Domini Millesimo CCC^mo lxxxiiij^to, Indiccione septima, Pontificatus Urbani Pape VI^ti Anno septimo, in Domo Capitulari Ecclesie Exoniensis, coram Reverendo in Christo Patri ac Domino, Domino Willelmo, Dei gracia Cantuariensi Archiepiscopo, pro tribunali sedente, Venerabilis Pater, Dominus Thomas, Dei gracia Exoniensis Episcopus, quandam Cedulam per unum Clericum de suis publice legi fecit, et, suam in ea parte voluntatem exprimens, Cedulam ipsam perlectam porrexit dicto Domino Cantuariensi, volens et revocans ac supplicans, ut dixit, prout in eadem Cedula plenius continetur. Et subsequenter idem Dominus Cantuariensis Cedulam sic porrectam recepit, et eam ac contenta in ea, salvo jure Ecclesie sue Cantuariensis, admisit; cujus tenor talis est,—Reverendissime Pater; Penitet me quod in aliquo videtur vobis quod displicui Paternitati vestre, cui pro viribus semper proposui, salvo statu meo et Ecclesie mee, in omnibus complacere. Et scire dignemini, Pater, quod ante hec tempora nunquam intelligere potui quam prerogativam seu consuetudinem habuisti, sicud pretenditis vos habere, nec que nec qualia preterquam in jure communi expressa exercuerunt Precessores et Predecessores vestri in Visitacionibus suis Metropoliticis, retroactis temporibus successivis, et precipue de quorumcumque subditorum criminibus et excessibus inquirere, et ea corrigere et reformare; ac causas et negocia quecumque in Visitacione Metropolitica emergencia per se et suos audire et fine debito terminare; Ordines Sacros et non sacros conferre; personas ad Beneficia, quacumque et qualitercumque vacancia, ad Metropolitanum presentatas admittere, instituere, et inducere, seu facere induci; Beneficia hujusmodi, eciam si Canonicatus, Prebende,

[3] The friendship of many years' standing, so sadly interrupted, had been renewed; to the relief, we may be sure, of both the Prelates and of the whole Province. Mr. Baigent points out that the word "Concordia" seems to shew that Courtenay desired to make things easy for the Bishop and let him down gently. Such a Document would otherwise have been styled "Submissio Episcopi."

Dignitates, aut Personatus vel Officia, eciam in Ecclesiis Cathedralibus, fuerint, si per privacionem seu amocionem, vel declaracionem privacionis, ipso jure per Metropolitanum factas, vacent, jure suo conferre; Permutaciones Beneficiorum auctorizare et resignaciones admittere; Abbates, Abbatissas, et Priores Electos confirmare, et confirmatos benedicere, si ad Metropolitanum recurrant; Priores ex causis legitimis amovere, et alios preficere loco eorum; Testamenta, eciam, beneficiatorum, et nobilium personarum, insinuare, et examinare et approbare, ac bonorum suorum Administraciones, eciam si ab intestato decesserint, committere; fructus, redditus, et proventus quorumcumque Beneficiorum vacancium provenientes, percipere et disponere de eisdem. Verum, quia, Reverendissime Pater, per inspeccionem Munimentorum ac Registrorum Precessorum et Predecessorum vestrorum, pro relevamine consciencie mee, sum informatus quod Precessores et Predecessores vestri, interpolatis vicibus, premissa, Permutacionum auctorizacionibus et fructuum Beneficiorum vacancium percepcionibus dumtaxat exceptis, in diversis Diocesibus vestre Provincie exercuerunt; et aliunde informacionem accepi quod Precessores et Predecessores mei simili modo quo ad personas ad eos durante Visitacione Metropolitica hujusmodi recurrentes, suo jure diversis temporibus exercuerunt; Volo, Pater benignissime, pro bono pacis, ut vos simili modo in Diocesi mea exerceatis (absque, tamen, prejudicio meo et Successorum meorum), modo quo predicitur; videlicet, quod prevenciones[1] in premissis effectum hinc et inde habeant, sine fraude, preterquam in correccionibus et reformacionibus criminum, excessuum, et defectuum, ex officio mero, et Probacionibus Testamentorum quorumcumque habencium Beneficia seu bona in diversis Diocesibus Provincie vestre Cantuariensis, et in Collacionibus Beneficiorum et Institucionibus presentatorum ad Beneficia, et prefeccione Priorum et aliorum ad Prioratus et Officia que per privacionem, amocionem, seu declaracionem privacionis per Metropolitanum factas vacare continget; que Metropolitanus libere poterit exercere. Volo, eciam, cum super premissis auctorizacionibus Permutacionum et percepcione fructuum Beneficiorum vacancium simili modo fuero informatus, quod in illis, sicud et ceteris supradictis, consimilis prevencio habeatur et exerceatur hinc et inde. Insuper, Reverende Pater, quia alias emanavit Mandatum meum in quo cavebatur quod ego ac Precessores et Predecessores solum et insolidum premissa exercuerunt durante Visitacione Metropolitica, correcione criminum et excessuum notoriorum in Visitacione hujusmodi compertorum dumtaxat excepta; et credo, per informacionem antedictam in verbis illis solum et insolidum me errasse; ideo errorem meum hujusmodi, quatenus de facto processit, revoco; supplicans Reverende Paternitati vestre quatinus omnia que per sinistram suspicionem de me concepistis remittere dignemini graciose. Presentibus, tunc ibidem, Magistris Willelmo Byde, Ada de Mottrum, Nicholao Hadeley, Willelmo Piers, Johanne Prophet, et Willelmo Hornby, et aliis.

"Quo facto, vocatis Canonicis ipsius Ecclesie et ibidem capitulariter congregatis, dictus Reverendus Pater, Dominus Cantuariensis, a Magistro Nicholao de Braybroke, Johanne Cheyne, et Domino Hugone de Bridham, Canonicis ipsius Ecclesie, inquisivit an vellent aliquid proponere, tunc ibidem, quare firmis eorum, quas habent in eadem Ecclesia, privati non debeant pronunciari, eo quod in terminis solucionis de Statuto Ecclesie limitatis non satisfecerunt. Ad quod iidem Nicholaus, Johannes, et Hugo asseruerunt se et quoscumque alios firmarios ipsius Ecclesie, preter Dominum Willelmum Dowbrugge, die proximo precedente in manus Presidentis et Capituli [firmas suas] resignasse; et, pro eo quod Dominus Cantuariensis imposuit eis quod hoc fecerant in fraudem et exclusionem Officii sui, ipsas firmas omnes iidem firmarii, tunc ibidem, denuo resignarunt in manus Presidentis et Capituli ut prefertur; et, ad eorum supplicacionem, idem Dominus Cantuariensis resignaciones ipsas admisit. Et tandem, quia erat magna altercacio inter ipsos Canonicos de certitudine Statutorum ipsius Ecclesie, voluit quod essent quatuor Canonici, videlicet Precentor, Cancellarius, ac Magister Willelmus Trevelles, et Dominus Willelmus Columptone, ad informandum Dominum, ex parte Capituli, super dubiis Statutorum suorum, ad finem quod ipsa poterit declarare, et eadem Statuta pro perpetuo stabilire."[1]

After this satisfactory settlement the Archbishop continued his Visitation, without let or hindrance, till its close. On the very next day (3 July) he received the Bishop in his chamber at Exminster, and on his request granted him Licence to resume the exercise of his Peculiar Jurisdiction throughout the Diocese, "non obstante dependencia Visitacionis sue Metropolitice."[2]

Meanwhile the Archbishop's Commissary (his Chancellor, Master Adam de Mottrum[3]) had been engaged, continuously, in Visitation-work; beginning with the Deanery of Christianity, in the Church of St. Mary-Major, on the 17th of March.

"Progressus Commissarii Domini per Civitatem et Diocesim Exonienses, Domino ibidem visitante.[4]

Hitherto the Archbishop had visited the several Archdeaconries only by deputy, the opposition and disobedience of the Bishop compelling him to remain near at hand, at the Manor-House, Exminster. But now, the "Finalis Concordia" having cleared the way, and the work in Devonshire being accomplished, he determined to visit the Archdeaconry of Cornwall in person. He set about his Visitation in the methodical manner which was evidently characteristick of all his work; and, before starting, he drew up a full Programme for his own use, to which there is evidence to shew

[1] Ibid., fol. 115. It will be seen, above, that the Commissary had been at work in Cornwall already. Probably, the Archbishop thought it necessary to bestow special and personal attention on the people of the remote County who (as the records of our Bishops testify) had always shewn themselves to be an unsubmissive, not to say troublesome, community.

Earlier in the year, about a month before the Commissary had commenced his Visitation of the Archdeaconry of Cornwall, an extraordinary attempt to deceive the Archbishop was made by a prominent layman of that County, which can only be regarded as fraudulent. The offender, evidently, thought that, in the remote locality in which he lived, he might safely take advantage of the fact that the authority of the Diocesan Bishop had been, for a time, suspended, and that the Archbishop's Commissary and his officers were strangers in that land. For he, actually, ventured to secure the recognition of a fictitious Benefice, close to his own house, and to claim the Patronage thereof. Accordingly, on the 4th of April, he sent to the Archbishop a formal Letter of Presentation to a non-existent "Rectory," — layle, a few miles north of Bodmin. That the Archbishop rested there on the 18th of August is certain, for a Creation, in a matrimonial cause, entered in his Register (fol. 121b), was "Data apud le Parke" on that day. He appears to have started from St. Germoh early in the day, and to have proceeded to Bodmin, where he dined at the Augustinian Priory, going on to the Perevells after dinner, and returning on the 20th to hold his Visitation. I suspect a clerical error here: the scribe should have written "apud Bodminiam, cum Priore, etc." The Perevells were devoted to the work of the Church, and were long held in high honour at Bodmin. Sir Hugh and Sir Thomas were prominent benefactors of the Franciscan Convent there, and both were buried in the Friary Church. This Thomas Perevell was the husband of Margaret Courtenay, daughter of Sir Thomas Courtenay, the Archbishop's uncle.—The account of the Family and of their Arms given by Lysons is inaccurate.

Of course, the Archdeacon of Cornwall must have been greatly puzzled when he received this Mandate; for both he and his Official, and the Vicar of Tywardreath, knew that every statement contained in it was groundless, and that apparently an attempt had been made to take advantage of the Archbishop's ignorance of the locality and of the circumstances of the case. There can be no doubt that, as in duty bound, he lost no time in reporting the matter to his Diocesan, who immediately intervened, and endeavoured to quash the proceedings by exposing the fraud. But Courtenay was misled by the Inquisition; and, knowing that his Visitation had been, from the beginning, opposed and even bitterly resented by Brantyngham, it is clear that he could not be persuaded that the Bishop's action was anything else than a fresh attempt to hinder the exercise of his Jurisdiction. So he took the side of the Cornish Knight and his Presentee, and proceeded to inhibit his opponents,—

Sir William Fitz-Walter was living at this time in his Manor-House of Langenythe,[1] in the Parish of St. Veep. In the adjoining Parish of St. Winnow is the Chapel of St. Nectan; still, and from time immemorial, a Parochial Chapelry, dependent on the Mother-Church. It was never a distinct "Ecclesia" (or Rectory), as the Archbishop was induced to believe; and all the above-recited details as to William the last Rector, the vacancy on his death, the Patronage, etc., were pure inventions. The Vicarage of St. Winnow has been from the very beginning of our records in the gift of the Dean and Chapter.[2] The Chapelry has always had its own limits as in all similar cases; and it may have occurred to Sir William that, the Jurisdiction of the Bishop being, for a time, superseded by the authority of the Primate, it might be possible to induce the latter to believe that those limits were the boundaries of a distinct Parish of which he was Patron, and to admit and institute his Presentee. Of course, it was certain that the plot would be unmasked sooner or later; but, probably, this daring Knight hoped to be able, when the Visitation was over, to persuade Bishop Brantyngham to accept the novel arrangement, for which he would be able to plead the Archbishop's authority and the fact that the duly instituted "Rector" was in possession. The scheme failed, as it was bound to fail, and we hear no more of Robert Baby,[3] or of Sir William's pretended Patronage. In his long indictment of Courtenay's proceedings, dated at Clyst on the 23rd of April, 1384, the Bishop refers to this strange affair, and states the case fully and clearly,[1]—

"Atque quendam Dominum Robertum Baby, presbiterum pretensum ejusdem Exoniensis Diocesis, ad Capellam Sancti Nectani, infra Parochiam Ecclesie Parochialis Sancti Winnoci, in Cornubia, prefate Diocesis, Decano et Capitulo Ecclesie Cathedralis Exonie, et ipsi Ecclesie Cathedrali, salva Porcione Vicarii Perpetui in eadem, unite et annexe, ac in proprios usus perpetuo possidende concesse, cum suis juribus et pertinenciis universis, notorie situatam, atque ab eadem Ecclesia Sancti Winnoci Parochiali et Matrice notorie dependentem, eidemque annexam et unitam tanquam ad Ecclesiam Parochialem Matricem et per se stantem nec aliqualiter dependentem, ad presentacionem Domini Willelmi Fitzwatere, Militis, ejusdem Ecclesie pretense, ymmo veraciter Capelle, ut pretenditur Patroni, cum non sit, de facto admisit, et Rectorem instituit in eadem, cum omnibus suis juribus et pertinenciis universis."

There are many references in the Archbishop's Register to the details of his Administration of the Diocese both before and after the submission of the contending Prelate on the 2nd of July. Much of the work was, of course, mere routine-work, such as the proving of Wills, the sequestration of the fruits of vacant Benefices, Institutions to Benefices, sundry Commissions, and the like. The Wills were few in number and of no particular interest. I may mention that of John Cryspyn, the Rector of Ashcombe,[2] which was proved at Exminster on the 24th of March, 1383-4; he bequeathed to William Hughe, Rector of Mamhead, "j togam longam vel armilausam longam," to John Graperay "j capucium," and to his servant, William Clerke, the residue of his estate. There was some contention between the Prelates over the Will of William de Wolastone, Rector of Tawstock. The Bishop sequestrated his effects on the 11th of April,[3] and on the 16th the Archbishop repeated the process. On the 12th the Bishop, finding that a contest was inevitable, had excommunicated certain persons who had laid hands on the sequestrated effects, and issued his Mandate that no one should presume to admit a clerk to the vacant Benefice. On the 16th of April the Will was proved before him at Clyst, and on the 11th of May he instituted Walter Parker, of Olneye, to the Rectory.[4] It does not appear that the Archbishop interfered further in the matter. There were, however, several collisions between the Archbishop and the Diocesan Bishop when Benefices became vacant, and it is clear that the former was not always allowed to have his own way; the Patrons expected to be heard, and not always in vain. On the 31st of March, the Prior and Convent of Merton (in the Diocese of Winchester) presented John Avery to the Rectory of St. Laurence,

Exeter,[1] and he was instituted by the Bishop on the 8th of May,[2] though the Archbishop had already admitted him, on the 6th of April. On the 1st of May, John Marcheford was presented to the Prebend of Penelles in the Church of Chulmleigh by the Lady Margaret Courtenay, who directed the Letter of Presentation to her son, the Archbishop, who instituted him on the 4th of May.[3] Apparently, Courtenay's action was disputed, for the Institution was repeated (on the Presentation of the said Countess of Devon, "our mother"), on the 11th of June.[4] The Prebend is described as that which Sir William Lye recently held. Now, Sir William Leye was instituted to this Prebend on the 18th of September, 1382; and on the 9th of March, 1392-3, the Bishop instituted Robert del Skires, in succession (not to Marcheford but) to the said William de Lee, the Patron on this occasion being the King, illa vice; ignoring altogether what the Archbishop had done.[5] On the 13th of May, the Archbishop collated John Cobthorne to the Rectory of St. James's, Exeter, "jure in hac parte devoluto"; and there seems to have been no dispute on this occasion. The case of the important Rectory of Camborne was strongly contested, as there were rival Patrons, the Archbishop siding with one of them, and the Bishop with the other. On the 1st of May, Sir William Nevylle, Knight, presented to the former, Robert Nevylle, B.C.L., and on the 11th the Archbishop directed the Archdeacon of Cornwall and his Official to hold an Inquisition as to the vacancy. Their Return is dated on the 13th; they found that Sir John Luky, the last Rector, died on the 20th of April; that Sir William Basset, Knight, had assigned the Presentation to Sir William Nevylle, Knight; Robert Nevylle, whom he had presented, was aged 30 years and more; he had the First Tonsure, and was not otherwise beneficed. Accordingly the Archbishop instituted him, and issued a Mandate, on the 13th of May, for his Induction.[6] But on the 1st of May the Bishop had instituted John de Kirkeby, of the Diocese of York, on the Presentation, hac vice, of the King, as Guardian of the lands and heir of the late Sir William Basset. And he directed his Mandate for Kirkeby's Induction to the Archdeacon and his Official,

[2] See page 88. Double Institutions were often resorted to, under ordinary circumstances, as precautionary measures, when there was a change of Bishops or of Patrons. But in this case the circumstances were not ordinary; and the Diocesan Bishop denounced and ignored the Archbishop's proceedings, issuing on the 9th of April a Mandate—"ne quis admittatur ad Ecclesiam Sancti Laurencii" except by his own authority or that of the Apostolick See, and ordering the parishioners not to receive or obey John Avery as their Rector, or render to him the fruits of the Benefice, under pain of Excommunication (page 526). to the Dean of Penwythe, and to six other persons; if the Archdeacon (or his Official) gave any trouble, the others were to act, in order to punish the said Archdeacon for his contumacy.[1] In the end the King and the Bishop prevailed. No particulars are given, but we find Kirkeby Rector of Camborne subsequently.[2] The Bishop instituted to Tawstock on the 13th of May, to Chagford on the 28th, to Lanivet on the 29th; and in each case his Mandate for induction was couched in the same threatening terms; but no trouble seems to have arisen in any of these cases.

It will be remembered[3] that on the 25th of March, when the Commissaries of the Archbishop proceeded to Clyst, intending to serve a formal Citation on Bishop Brantyngham, they were met by an armed band of the Bishop's adherents, who not only repelled them from the Manor-House but pursued them for a considerable distance along the Topsham-road, and grievously maltreated them. The Archbishop immediately excommunicated the ringleaders of this disgraceful business, and we cannot doubt that he kept his eye on them during the Visitation, though they are not again referred to in the record of its progress. Doubtless, they were in hiding, impenitent, and unwilling to submit. But later in the year, and some time after the Archbishop had left Devonshire and was engaged in the Visitation of other Dioceses, they came to a better mind, and proceeded to Gloucester, where, in the Choir of the Abbey-Church, they appeared before the Archbishop, on the 2nd of November, and made their Submission. They were then and there absolved; but they were required to appear before the Archbishop again on the 18th of the month, wherever he might happen to be within his Province, to receive their Penance. And they had to journey all the way to Lambeth for this purpose; where, in the Private Chapel, a most severe Penance was enjoined, involving them in serious expenses, trouble, and inconvenience. The particulars of the case are recorded at length in Courtenay's Register (fol. 114), and, being of considerable interest, must find a place here,—

The Register of Bishop Brantyngham, as in the case of those of his Predecessors, is, of course, concerned mainly with the routine-work of the Administration of the Diocese. It was very carefully kept; and the numerous Entries are continuous from beginning to end, and full of interesting details. It would be, practically, impossible to deal with them all within the limits of an ordinary Preface; neither is it necessary to attempt to do so, as the copious Indexes[1] which I have provided will, I hope, be found by the Student sufficient for all purposes. It may be well, however, to direct attention, in this place, to a few matters of exceptional interest.

I have already shewn that, although, like Stapeldon, he was a "statesman-Bishop," it cannot be said that he neglected his Diocese. It is true that he was frequently called away from his Diocesan duties; but there is abundant evidence to shew that, all difficulties notwithstanding, his heart was in what he felt to be his proper work, and that he spared neither expense nor labour in his endeavours to make all necessary provision for its efficient accomplishment. There appears to be a general impression that he neglected the regular administration of the Sacrament of Confirmation; and, indeed, this charge has been freely brought against all our Medieval Bishops. I am sure that it cannot be justified. It is true that their Registers contain no references to "Confirmation-centres," such as we have been accustomed to in modern times; and there are no "Confirmation-Lists." But there are numerous incidental references to this important part of a Bishop's work; and I fail to see that we are entitled to expect to find anything else. It is, really, absurd to suppose that such a man as Grandisson could be guilty of such neglect; he was always in his Diocese; and we know that, when he was over-burdened with work, it was his wont to commission another Bishop, who was specially charged with this important duty. John Ware (or Warre), a Bishop in partibus infidelium, was consecrated in 1354, and served in this office more or less continuously, in fact whenever his services were wanted, until the Bishop's death. And Brantyngham continued to employ him both for Ordinations and Confirmations, and for other less important Episcopal Functions.[2] In February, 1378-9, for instance, he commissioned him "ad confirmandum pueros baptizatos, in Civitate et Diocesi Exonie, ac precipue in Archidiaconatu Cornubiensi"—always a very difficult part of the Diocesan's work, down to Bishop Temple's time. Also, a year later,—"ad celebrandum Ordines; necnon ad confirmandum pueros." And again, in September, 1385,—"ad quoscumque pueros non confirmatos confirmandum." Moreover, although Bishop Brantyngham constituted no formal "Centres" for confirmation, there can be no doubt, that, like his Predecessors, he provided the "pueri" (the boys and girls) of his Diocese with abundant opportunities. The Register of Ordinations shews that in every part of his Diocese, often in the most remote country-villages, he was accustomed to admit large numbers of youths to the First Tonsure; and it was his duty to ask all who were presented to him whether they had been confirmed or not. A glance at the Itinerary will shew how very numerous these informal "Centres" were; and that he did not neglect his duty is proved incidentally by two interesting Entries in his Ordination-Register. In the year 1374 three candidates from the Island of Jersey presented themselves, and it is specially recorded that he confirmed them before admitting them,—"Petrum Hurteour et Matheum Clerke, de Insula Gersii, Dominus confirmavit, ac eciam ordinavit ad Primam Tonsuram"; and again, later in the year, "Matheus Fochun, de Insula Gersii," was "ordinatus ad Primam Tonsuram, ac eciam confirmatus."

[1] See page 962, under EXETER CATHEDRAL.

[2] See the Index under "Cumanagiensis Episcopus"; also, the Ordination-Lists (passim)

It will be seen that the Bishop granted many Licences for the celebration of Divine Service in Chapels and private Oratories; the former in small townships and scattered hamlets, the latter within the Manor-Houses of Nobles and County-Gentlemen, and, in a few instances, within the Parsonage-House itself.[1] The movement in this direction was on a very large scale; and it has been attributed by some writers not to any increase in devotion but to a general relaxation of discipline and the consequent desertion, in many places, of the Parish-Churches in favour of more convenient arrangements nearer home. It will be found, however, that these Licences were not granted indiscriminately or recklessly, merely because they were asked for, but for short periods, determinable at the Bishop's pleasure; and that, as a rule, the Grantees were required to obtain the consent of the Rector, or Vicar, and to undertake that the privileges and the services of the Parish-Church should, in no wise, be neglected or infringed. The movement began in Bishop Grandisson's time; and I cannot doubt that it was due, in large measure, to the impression made on his subditi throughout the Diocese by his strenuous and devoted labours at all times, and especially by his heroism and self-sacrifice during the aweful visitation of the great Pestilence of 1349, the lessons of which he would assuredly lose no opportunity of enforcing, calling on those who had been careless heretofore to set their houses in order, and to direct their thoughts to the great verities of the eternal world. "Sin, autem, malum vobis videtur ut Domino serviatis, optio vobis datur, . . . ego, autem, et domus mea serviemus Domino."—Of course, there were many, both clericks and laymen, who paid little heed to the signs of the times, and were not reached by this great wave of devotion; and the Register contains more than one account of grievous outrages committed by men who

[1] These Entries will be found of great interest and value by students of local history and genealogy. They are all entered under the dates when the Licences were granted, and are consequently scattered about all over the Register, and not easy to find. But I have met this difficulty by preparing a separate and two-fold Index of Persons and Places, which will be found of great service (pp. 947—955).

ought to have known better. The case of Geoffrey Lange, the unfortunate Rector of Stoke-Rivers, is of sufficient interest to claim special mention here. On the 7th of September, 1383, —I am quoting the Return made to the Bishop by the Official of the Archdeacon of Barnstaple, after an Inquisition held at Hartland,—the Rector was walking quietly near the Churchyard of his Parish, when he was met by John Aclane, of Aclane in the adjoining Parish of Landkey, who addressed him in furious and menacing terms, —"You are keeping back a book of mine, a part of a book of mine: give it up to me immediately; if you don't, you shall pay the penalty in your person." Lange meekly replied that he had handed over the book to him already. Whereupon Aclane told him that he was a liar, and forthwith drew his sword, and smote him on the head, inflicting a severe wound. After which he rushed at his victim, who made no attempt to defend himself, and drawing a small knife, "commonly called a dagger,"[1] plunged it into his left shoulder three times and once below the waist. The wounds were serious, and blood flowed freely "from every one of them." The Bishop cited the culprit to appear before him, threatening him with Excommunication if he failed to do so; but Aclane hid himself so effectually that the Citation could not be served.[1]

Bishop Brantyngham died, in his Manor-House of Bishop's Clyst, on the 3rd of December, 1394. He was buried in the north aisle of the Nave of his Cathedral Church.[2] "We were present," Dr. Oliver tells us, "at the opening of the tomb on the 3rd of December, 1832, and all the witnesses agreed that the hand of sacrilegious spoliation had done its worst. Formerly the portrait of the Bishop inlaid with brass, with his armorial bearings, and an inscription on the four sides of the leger-stone, were visible, but these appear to have been stripped away when the revolutionary fanatics of 1646 enacted their wanton and sacrilegious scenes with impunity throughout this sacred edifice. During the actual relaying of the pavement in the Nave it became necessary to move the leger-stone that covered the Bishop's remains; and this was carefully done. The stone had rested in the centre on two cross iron bars. The vault was half filled with earth and tiles. The body had been buried in a wooden coffin, which had entirely mouldered away. Some of the large nails were in a state of preservation, but nothing remained of the Bishop except a considerable portion of the bones. From the examination of the skull and teeth the inspectors were satisfied that the venerable Prelate must have lived to a good old age; and it is further evident that the grave had been opened before, and rifled of the chalice and ring which must have been buried with him. The bones and the earth were immediately replaced with great decency and respect."[1]—Requiescat in Pace.

[1] See pp. 505, 513.—Referring to this early use of the word "dagger," my Friend Dr. Furnivall writes,—"You have dagger before Chaucer, though not before the 1375 Latin extract in our Dictionary." In the same letter he refers to "newiers day," which occurs under 1373 (page 209, No. 10),—"it is the earliest I've seen." Lange survived his injuries, and remained at Stoke-Rivers till March, 1392-3, when he exchanged for the Vicarage of South Tawton (page 126).

[2] For the Bishop's Will, which I have printed at length, see pp. 742—749. See, also, page 742 (note) for particulars as to his Chantry, and page 748 (note) for evidence as to the correct date of his Will.

Including the Register of Bishop Edmund de Stafford (which was published in 1886), I have been permitted to give to the Church and to the Diocese, in eight large and closely printed Volumes, the Registers of our Bishops from A.D. 1257 to A.D. 1419; and I record the fact in humble thankfulness to Him who has enabled me to accomplish so large a portion of the task which I set myself in 1884, when I began the actual work of transcribing and editing. It is my earnest desire to complete my task, if God spares me, by editing the latest of our great medieval Registers, the Register of Bishop Edmund Lacy, whose Episcopate extended from 1420 to 1455,—a most valuable and interesting Record. My sincere thanks are due, and are hereby tendered, to those who have loyally supported me in my really arduous work for so many years;[2] and I must again thank, and with all my heart, the good friends who have worked for me, affording invaluable help whenever I have found occasion to ask for it,—Canon Dalton, of Windsor; Canon Edmonds, our Chancellor, who knows more, I think, than any one else in the Diocese of the history and structure of our Cathedral, which he has made his special study for many years; the Rev. W. D. Macray, late of the Bodleian Library, who retired at Michaelmas last, after sixty five years of faithful service; Dr. F. J. Furnivall, well known as an accomplished scholar; the Rev. W. Iago, of Bodmin; the Rev. Oswald Reichel, of Lympstone; Mr. Thurstan Peter, of Redruth; Mr. W. E. Mugford, of Exeter; above all, my dear Friend, Mr. Baigent, of Winchester, who, from first to last, has generously rendered me continuous and ungrudging help, help such as he alone is competent to give. His contributions to the present Volume are of the greatest importance and value; for to his kindness I am indebted for the careful and exhaustive extracts from the Register of Archbishop Courtenay which have enabled me to enrich this Preface with a full account of the Metropolitical Visitation of 1384; an event which, strange to say, is not so much as mentioned by Dr. Oliver in his "Life" of Bishop Brantyngham, though many of the Documents, it will be seen, are included in that Prelate's Register.

Dodeforde Manerium, tentum ut de Honore de Leycestria	Northampton.
Oxshulle Manerium - - - - - - - - - -	Warwic.

The Writs for holding this Inquisition were tested at Westminster, 10 Oct., 1413.

Co. WILTS.—Inquisition taken at Wermynstre on the Friday next before the Feast of St. Luke, the Evangelist [viz. on 13 Oct., 1413].

The Jurors say, upon their oath, that William Brantyngham, named in the Writ, held no lands or tenements of the Lord King in chief, nor of others in the County of Wiltes, on the day of his death, in demesne as of the fee, nor in service. But they say that the said William Brantyngham held on the day of his death, for the term of his life only, in the vill of Purytone, the Manor of Kaynescourt, with appurtenances, in the said County, by grant of John Cressy, now deceased, to the aforesaid William for the term of his life, with the reversion thereof to belong, after his death, to the said John Cressy and his heir. The said Manor was worth 100*s.* by the year. John Cressy, who is under age and in the King's Wardship, is the nearest heir of the said John Cressy, deceased, namely brother of Thomas Cressy, son of Thomas Cressy son of the said John Cressy, the father, deceased.

The said William Brantyngham died on the 15th of July last past, sine herede.

The aforesaid John Cressy, the son, is aged six years and more.

Co. NORTHAMPTON.—Inquisition taken at Everdone on Monday next before the Feast of the Apostles St. Simon and St. Jude, in the first year of Henry Vth [23 Oct., 1413].

The aforesaid Willam de Brantyngham held for life, to the day of his death only, a moiety of the Manor of Dodeford, by the grant of the aforesaid John Cressy, now deceased, to the said William Brantyngham (the other moiety of the said Manor, with appurtenances, excepted), and to Johanna his wife, now deceased; which aforesaid William Brantyngham having survived the said Johanna, the reversion of the aforesaid Manor to remain entirely, after their deaths, to the said John Cressy and his heirs. The said Manor in its entirety is worth yearly 40*l.*, whereof Cristiana, who was the wife of John de Cressy, is dowered with the third part.

The other particulars follow as given in the previous Inquisition held at Warminster.

In the Warwickshire Inquisition he is called Sir William Brantyngham, Chivaler, deceased. In the reign of King Richard II he disseised Lewis Cardygan and Alice his wife of the said Manor [of Oxeshulve], and he continued in possession. It was, and is, the right of the said Alice, who amoved the said William by disseisin, and continued in possession until the said William Brantyngham feoffed the said Manor to a certain John Brantyngham, to him and his heirs for ever; by virtue of whose feoffment the said John Brantyngham was seized thereof, and by a charter, shown to the said Escheator and the Jury, he continued to hold it until the said Lewis and Alice his wife, in the right of the said Alice, entered into the said Manor, and the said John Brantyngham was amoved and expelled from the possession of the said Manor.

It is worth 100*s.* [by the year]. And the said John Brantyngham is the nearest heir of the aforesaid William Brantyngham and aged 30 years and more. And the said William Brantyngham died on the 15th of July last past. And the Jury say that, after the said feoffment made to the said John Brantyngham as is aforesaid, the said William never had any estate in the said Manor, or in any part thereof.

In the Inquisition held at Guildford, Surrey, the Jurors say they know not who is the nearest heir of the said William Brantyngham, and that the said William Brantyngham died on the 15th of July last past.

Co. Warwic.—The Manor of Oxeshulve was granted to him [William Brantyngham] for life by John Cressy, with the reversion to the said John Cressy and his heirs.

The same particulars follow as to the death of William Brantyngham and the heir of Cressy, as given above. [F.J.B.]

Hollacombe; A case of assault,—

Vicesimo quarto die mensis Octobris, etc., in Manerio Domini de Clyst, comparuit Galfridus Gybbe, parochianus Capelle Parochialis de Cokebury, ab Ecclesia Parochiali de Myltone Damarle dependentis, et petiit se absolvi a Sentencia Excommunicacionis Majoris lata a Canone Si quis, suadente diabolo, qua, occasione manuum violentarum injeccionis per ipsum in Dominum Johannem [Neel], Rectorem Ecclesie Parochialis de Holecombe, juxta Holdesworthy, presbiterum, scienter facte et commisse, extiterat innodatus. Set, quia, ex inspeccione vulnerum eidem Rectori per ipsum inflictorum, eidem Domino apparuit hujusmodi violenciam et injuriam fore gravem et enormem, ideo injunctum fuit sibi, ex parte dicti Domini, quod pro Absolucione in hac parte optinenda se Apostolico conspectui presentaret; qui, quidem, Galfridus, tactis Sacrosanctis Dei Evangeliis, corporale prestitit juramentum quod tanta laborabat tunc paupertate quod Sedem Apostolicam, pro Absolucione hujusmodi optinenda, pro tunc non potuit visitare; unde Magister Willelmus Piers, Commissarius Domini in hac parte legitime deputatus, recepto primitus ab eo juramento de stando Mandatis Ecclesie, eundem absolvit, juxta formam Capituli Eos de Sentencia Excommunicacionis

The Will of Bishop Brantyngham.[1]

TESTAMENTUM EPISCOPI EXONIENSIS.

A.D. 1393. In Nomine Summe et Individue Trinitatis, Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, Amen.—Ego Thomas, indignus Exoniensis Episcopus, sanus Dei gracia mente et corpore, condo Testamentum meum in hunc modum.

Ante omnia commendo spiritum meum Deo, Creatori meo; corpus, vero, meum Sacre Sepulture in Navi dicte Ecclesie Exoniensis, ex parte boriali, videlicet coram Altari nuper per me constructo, et in honore Sancte et Individue Trinitatis per me dedicato.[2] Volo, eciam, quod circa corpus meum, in vigilia et in die sepulture mee, tempore Exequiarum, sint tantum iiij cerei et iiij mortarii cere, pondus cujuslibet v libre vel circiter, hinc inde ad modum Crucis. Item, tempore Exequiarum, in vigilia et in die sepulture mee, sint xxiiij pauperes, nigro induti, stantes circa corpus meum, tenentes xxiiij tortices ardentes, pondus cujuslibet x libre vel circiter; de quibus torticibus, post diem sepulture mee, sint duo ad quodlibet Altare in eadem Ecclesia, ad illuminandum ibidem tempore Consecracionis et Elevacionis Corporis Christi; et habeat quilibet vj*d*. Volo, eciam, quod quelibet Ecclesia Parochialis in Civitate Exoniensi habeat duos cereos, pondus cujuslibet ij libre cere, ad ardendum tempore Exequiarum mearum, sive tempore Misse in eisdem Ecclesiis. Volo, eciam, quod singuli sacerdotes, tempore Exequiarum mearum presentes et Officium psallentes vel dicentes, quilibet habeat xij*d*.,

[1] I am indebted to the kindness of the Reverend J. N. Dalton, Canon of Windsor, for the copy of this Will and for the revision of the proofs.

[2] "This Chantry," says Dr. Oliver, in his History of the Cathedral, page 216, "we believe was dedicated to St. Anne, for whom the founder had a special veneration." And this statement is repeated in the new edition of the late Archdeacon Freeman's Architectural History of the Cathedral (page 93),—"the Chapel beneath the sixth bay eastward, on the north side, was reputed as St. Anne's, where Bishop Brantyngham was buried." In neither case is any authority given; and it would seem that the writers had not read the Bishop's Will. Oliver, indeed, mentions it in his Life of the Bishop (page 92), but gives its date incorrectly by a year. See the footnote at the end of the Will.

[1] He held the Prebend of Church-Withington in Hereford Cathedral Church; but his name is omitted in Le Neve's List of the Prebendaries. Neither is it mentioned in any List that he was elected Bishop of Hereford. This, no doubt, took place in July, 1369, and the Election was set aside by the Pope's Provision of William de Courtenay to the vacant See, 17 Aug., in the same year [F.J.B.].—Canon Dalton refers me to the Calendar of Papal Registers (Petitions: vol. i, pp. 381 and 415), where it is recorded that the King petitioned Pope Innocent VI, 11 Dec., 1361, for Thomas de Brantyngham, who was then "his Treasurer of Calais and of the County of Gynes, for a Canonry of London with expectation of a Prebend, notwithstanding that he has the Church of Assheby-David in the Diocese of Lincoln." It was granted, and Brantyngham petitioned Pope Urban V for confirmation of the same, "though he has a Canonry and Prebend of Hereford."

[2] He was Canon and Subdean of Exeter. See Bishop's Grandisson's Register, page 1414.

[1] Sic, in the MS.; a clerical error for "Wayneman."

[2] According to Le Neve (vol. i, page 373), "his will, dated 13th Dec., 1394, was proved on the 30th of the same month," and Dr. Oliver (Life, page 92) tells us that "the 'Chronicon' of his Church fixes his death—which took place at Bishop's Clist, where he had long been sojourning—on 3rd December, 1394," adding that "this is manifestly incorrect, for his will was made on the 13th of that month and year, and proved on 30th December." It will be seen that both of the above statements are "incorrect," and that on a vital point—the date of the Will. This is stated, not in figures, but in words, "nonogesimo tercio," and the added words—"et Consecracionis mee Anno vicesimo quarto" establish the fact beyond the possibility of dispute. Moreover, the date of the Probate of the Will is given as "M°. CCC° nonogesimo quarto." Both dates were in December, which seems to have led to all this confusion. But it is clear that the Bishop made his Will, not a few days, but nearly a year, before his death. The 24th year of his Episcopate extended from 12 May, 1393, to 11 May, 1394.

Presentibus noverint universi quod Venerabilis Pater, Frater Johannes Warre, etc. (ut supra), nostris vice et auctoritate sibi in ea parte commissis, die Sabbati qua cantatur Officium Scicientes, videlicet xxvj die mensis Marcii, A.D. M°. CCC^mo lxxix°, in Ecclesia Conventuali de Dunkeswylle, dilectum nobis in Christo filium, Magistrum Rogerum Page, Rectorem Ecclesie Parochialis de Chiritone Fitzpayn, diaconum, ad titulum predicte sue Ecclesie, rite et Canonice in presbiterum ordinavit. —Dated London, 16 Jan., 1380-1].

Licence granted to the Bishop of Exeter by William de Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester,—"Sancte devocionis vestre propositum, quem ad exequendum vestri Pontificalis Officii debitum habere dinoscimini, ex cordis intimis attendentes, ut quoscumque clericos de Diocesi vestra Exoniensi oriundos, ac vestros familiares, possitis in Capellis Manerierorum vestrorum, et Locis aliis quibuscumque idoneis et honestis, ubicumque infra nostram Diocesim Wyntoniensem constitutis, ad omnes Minores et Sacros Ordines quos requirunt licite promovere, et pro personis predictis, Temporibus ad hoc a Jure statutis, Ordines celebrare; necnon, Missas et alia Divina Officia in hujusmodi Capellis et Locis aliis supradictis quibuscumque, per Capellanos vestros familiares et domesticos, tam in absencia vestra quam in presencia, licite eciam celebrari facere valeatis; ita, tamen, quod Ecclesiis Parochialibus Locorum predictorum, et eorum curatis, per hoc non fiat prejudicium aliquale; Licenciam vobis tenore Presencium concedimus specialem, quamdiu nobis placuerit tantummodo duraturam."—Dated at Southwark, 18 Aug., 1380.

CXXVI.

[1380-1; 17 March].—Item, in Ecclesia Collegiata Sancte Marie de fol. 50b. Otery, xvij die mensis Marcii, A.D. M°. CCC^mo lxxx^mo, et Consecracionis Domini xj^mo, ordinati fuerunt per Dominum ad Primam Tonsuram,— CXXVII.

Presentibus noverint universi quod nos, Thomas, miseracione Divina Episcopus Exoniensis, xxij die mensis Marcii, A.D. M°. CCC° lxxxj° [1381-2]; in Capella nostra de Clist, dilectum nobis in Christo Johannem Philip, de Gerneseya, Constanciensis Diocesis, scolarem, per sufficientes Literas Dimissorias sui Diocesani nobis directas, clericali caractere insignivimus, tunc ibidem. In cujus. Datum loco, die, et Anno Domini supradictis, et nostre Consecracionis duodecimo.—Written on a scrap of paper,[1] bound in at this place. There is a mark of reference both on the folio and on this paper, showing that the latter was to supply a deficiency at the end of the above List of Tonsurati. As there is an interval of a year between the same and this added Entry, we must conclude that Philip, who lived in Guernsey, was unable to cross in time for the Ordination at Ottery-St. Mary, and was specially tonsured at Clyst, when he was able to present himself. The Letter and the reference-marks are contemporaneous with the Register.

CXXVIII.

[1381; 30 March].—Ordines celebrati per Dominum in Capella Manerii sui de Clist, die Sabbati qua cantatur Officium Sicientes, videlicet iij° Kalendas Aprilis, A.D. M°. CCC^mo lxxxj^mo, et Consecracionis Domini Anno xj°.

Accoliti,—

Harry, Johannes, Canonicus in Ecclesia Collegiata Sancti Thome, Martiris, Glasneye.

[1] On the back is a rough draft of a letter. It is of no value, as no name or date is given. It begins: "Nobilis in Christo fili carissime," and sets forth the complaint of one "J. de B." that he had been unjustly excommunicated on account of a debt which he had discharged in full. He begged the Bishop to absolve him.

—The Register of Ordinations ends here, at the foot of fol. 67a; the back of the leaf having been left blank. It would seem, therefore, that this List of Priests ordained in Sept. 1392, was left incomplete, and that no Entries of Ordinations celebrated during the last two years of Brantyngham's Episcopate were copied into the formal Register. The Entries which follow have been kindly transcribed for me by Mr. Baigent from the Register of Archbishop Courtenay, who visited this Diocese, as Metropolitan, in 1384, and, being resisted by the Bishop of Exeter, proceeded forthwith to act independently of the Diocesan. It will be seen, for instance, that, while our Bishop was holding his General Ordination, as usual, on the 26th of March, in that year, and on the 27th a smaller Ordination to the Minor Orders [Nos. CCV & CCVI], the Primate was ordaining simultaneously at Exminster, where he was residing in his Mother's House. And the same thing occurred on the 9th of April [No. CCVII] and the 4th of June [No. CCVIII].

[15] The dates are clear. Evidently, the Bishop left Bishop's Tawton very early on the 27th, reaching Glasney in the evening (where he must have transacted some pressing business), and returning to Bishop's Tawton on the following day. The journey was a very long one.

I.

This interesting Document belongs to the time of Bishop Stapeldon. It was written on a blank page in Bishop Brantyngham's Register of Ordinations, etc., fol. 27. The Chapel of St. Laud (or St. Lo) was dependent on the Church of St. Mylor till the year 1868, when it was severed from the Mother-Church and became a separate Vicarage. On the 9th of March, the day before the date of this Document, the Bishop held an Ordination in this Chapel and admitted thirty-four candidates (whose names are recorded in his Register) to the First Tonsure.—See Bishop Stapeldon's Register, page 459.

De Capella Sancti Laudi, juxta Penren, in Cornubia [hodie Mabe].

[A.D. 1308-9.] Universis presentes Literas inspecturis vel audituris, Walterus, permissione Divina Exoniensis Episcopus, salutem in Domino.—Ad universitatis vestre noticiam, et ad perpetuam rei memoriam, tenore Presencium volumus pervenire quod, cum nos nuper in Archidiaconatu Cornubiensi, auctoritate Dyocesana debite Visitacionis officium exercere-mus, prout nostro incumbit officio, comparuit coram nobis Walterus de Carnduyou, Procurator parochianorum Capelle Sancti Laudi, juxta Penren, nostre Diocesis, pro se et comparochianis suis, Matrici Ecclesie Sancti Melori dependentis et subjecte, a tempore a quo non extat memoria, cum tractatu prehabito et consensu omnium parochianorum, legitime, juxta formam Procuratorii sui, a predictis parochianis constitutus,—cujus Procuratorii tenor talis est,—Pateat universis per Presentes quod nos, Johannes de Trenewythe, Galfridus de Anter, Nicholaus de Tremoghe, et ceteri parochiani Capelle Sancti Laudi, juxta Penren, a Parochiali Ecclesia Sancti Melori ut Capella dependentis, Exoniensis Diocesis, communi tractatu prehabito et consensu communi in omnibus causis et negociis nostris, nos et nostram communitatem qualitercumque tangentibus motis et movendis qualitercumque, et coram quibuscumque Judicibus, quamcumque jurisdiccionem seu mocionem habentibus, dilectum nobis in Christo, Walterum de Carnduyou, comparochianum nostrum, Procuratorem nostrum facimus, ordinamus, et constituimus per Presentes. Dantes eidem Procuratori nostro potestatem generalem nomine nostro et mandatum speciale agendi, nosque defendendi, quodlibet genus liciti juramenti, tam de calumpnia quam de veritate dicenda, in animas nostras jurandi, et Ordinacionem Canonicam Venerabilis Patris, Domini Walteri, Divina permissione Exoniensis Episcopi, in quantum nos et Dedicacionem Capelle nostre predicte et ejusdem Cimiterii contingit petendi et admittendi, et suscipiendi, et eidem legittime obtemperandi; necnon, omnia et singula alia faciendi, procurandi, et expediendi que quivis Procurator facere et expedire possit, eciam si mandatum exigant speciale, rem ratam haberi et judicatum solvi pro eodem sub ypotheca rerum nostrarum promitti-

[A.D. 1308-9.] mus et exponimus cauciones. In cujus rei testimonium sigillum Decanatus Peculiaris Jurisdiccionis de Penren Presentibus apponi procuravimus. Datum apud Penren, viij° die mensis Marcii, Anno Domini M°. CCC^mo octavo,—humiliter supplicans et instanter petens ut dictam Capellam, sic dependentem, cum Cimiterio suo, consecrare dignaremur; pretendens et assignans multas causas necessarias et honestas propter quas ipsa Capella, cum Cimiterio suo, consecrari deberet, pro eo quod ipsa Capella per quatuor miliaria a Matrice Ecclesia distat, et in delacione corporum Matrici Ecclesie tumulandorum multa pericula imminent et subsistunt, tum propter discrimina viarum, tum propter inundaciones aquarum que frequenter accidere dinoscuntur. Nos, vero, premissa considerantes equitate prehabita, fecimus Dominum Prepositum Glasneye, dicte Ecclesie Sancti Melori Rectorem, coram nobis evocare, cum sua intersit, ad proponendum pro se, si quid habeat effectuale proponendum, quare dicta Capella, cum Cimiterio, consecrari minime per nos debeat. Item, vero, Prepositus coram nobis comparuit; Consecracioni dicte Capelle et Cimiterii ejusdem consensit; ita, videlicet, quod dicta Capella Sancti Laudi sit, suo perpetuo, Matrici Ecclesie Sancti Melori subjecta, prout actenus sibi subjecta esse consuevit; et quod duodecim legales homines de Parochia Capelle antedicte, et sui successores quicumque qui pro tempore fuerint, deferant et, suo perpetuo, solvant in futurum et agnoscant, pro se et heredibus suis, Ecclesie Sancti Melori, die Festi Sancti Melori, duodecim denarios, in signum subjeccionis et dependencie. Et, si contingat ipsos parochianos in solucione dictorum duodecim denariorum cessare, aut non solvere predicta die, volunt predicti parochiani predicte Capelle quod Officialis Peculiaris Jurisdiccionis de Penren compellat eos ad solvendum duplum in crastino, et sic singulis diebus quamdiu et quocienscumque in solucione dicte pecunie cessaverint, aut contigerit eos cessare, sine strepitu judiciali. Preterea, dicti parochiani Capelle antedicte sustinebunt sumptibus suis propriis Ecclesiam Sancti Laudi, videlicet Cancellum ejusdem, in omnibus, videlicet fenestris vitreis, Libris Matutinalibus quibuscumque et Libris ad Missam, et aliis Ornamentis quibuscumque; et omnia onera qualitercumque dicte Capelle de cetero pertinencia agnoscent. Et Cimiterium Matricis Ecclesie Sancti Melori, prout actenus facere consueverunt, claudent pro porcione ipsos contingente, reparabunt, et sustinebunt. Et mortuaria, et omnia alia que solvere consueverunt, in futurum solvent. Et nos, predictus Pater, Exoniensis Episcopus, ad rogatum Procuratoris dictorum parochianorum, ipsos parochianos, in persona sui Procuratoris, ad premissa omnia facienda, sustinenda, et agnoscenda in futurum, in hiis scriptis sentencialiter et diffinitive condempnamus, Sentenciam nostram execucioni debite demandandam fore decernentes. Datum apud Penren die Sabbati proxima post Festum Sanctarum Perpetue et Felicitatis, Anno Domini M°. CCC^mo octavo, et Consecracionis nostre Anno Primo [10 March, 1308-9].

The following Document also belongs to Bishop Stapeldon's time, and was written on a blank page of the same Register of Ordinations, fol. 36b.

Nota. Composicio inter Episcopum Exoniensem et Comitem Devonie super homagio et servicio ipsius Comitis, ac feodis sibi debitis tempore Intronizacionis Episcopi Exoniensis.

[A.D. 1308.] Noverint universi quod, cum inter Dominum Walterum de Stapeldone, Dei gracia Exoniensem Episcopum, ex parte una, et Dominum Hugonem, filium et heredem Domini Hugonis de Courtenaye, ex altera, discordie materia fuisset exorta super eo quod dictus Dominus Hugo clamavit et clamat Manerium de Slaptone, in Comitatu Devonie, cum pertinenciis, de eodem Domino Episcopo per homagium et servicium; occasione cujus tenure asseruit dictus Dominus Hugo quod debuit esse Senescallus dicti Domini Episcopi in Festo Intronizacionis sue, et ipse et heredes sui similiter in quolibet Festo Intronizacionis cujuslibet Episcopi Exoniensis, et ponere homines ad beneplacitum suum in quolibet officio in dicto Festo, et aliqua feoda percipere, ibi et alibi, occasione Senescalcie predicte; tandem, die et loco confeccionis Presencium, communibus amicis intervenientibus, super dicta Senescalcia et feodo occasione dicte Senescalcie percipiendo, necnon et posicione hominum dicti Domini Hugonis et heredum suorum in officio in dicto Festo, et eciam omnibus aliis dictam Senescalciam tangentibus, in forma subsequenti convenit perpetuis temporibus servatura; videlicet, quod predictus Dominus Hugo, racione predicti Manerii de Slaptone, quod de dicto Domino Episcopo tenet nomine Senescalcii et servicii de dicto Manerio de Slaptone dicto Domino Episcopo debiti, die Intronizacionis cujuslibet Episcopi Exoniensis suo tempore intronizandi; et heredes sui qui plene etatis fuerint post ipsum, die Intronizacionis cujuslibet Episcopi Exoniensis futuri, obviabunt dicto Episcopo extra Portam Orientalem, in descensu palefridi sui ad tardius, et extunc inantea ducent latus ejus dexterum, ipsumque a concursu et oppressione populi pro viribus conservabunt, quousque ducatur in Chorum Ecclesie Cathedralis Exoniensis intronizandus; et subsequenter, ipso die, in majori refeccione, ponant personaliter totum primum ferculum coram dicto Domino Episcopo, et percipient tantummodo quatuor discos argenteos de illis quos posuerint coram Episcopo in dicto primo ferculo, duo salsaria, et unam cuppam de qua bibet Episcopus ad mensam in dicta refeccione, unum salsarium[1], unum picherium ad vinum, unum coclear, et duas pelves de quibus laverit dictus Episcopus predicto die; et hec omnia vasa debent esse argentea. Ita, tamen, quod, si predictus Hugo vel heredes sui plene etatis in propria persona predictum servicium non fecerint, nichil omnino percipient de vasis argenteis supradictis illa vice, nec quicquam aliud racione Senescalcie supradicte; hoc excepto, quod, si predictus Hugo aut heredes sui, tempore alicujus hujusmodi Intronizacionis future tali egritudine fuerint gravati quod hujusmodi servicium personaliter facere nequeant, vel per Breve Domini nostri Regis ad procuracionem Domini Episcopi vel Successorum suorum imperpetuum fuerint impediti, tunc licebit eis unum honorabilem Militem, Literas dicti Domini Hugonis vel heredum suorum super hoc deferentem patentes, loco suo ad hujusmodi servicium substituere; qui Miles jurabit quod predictus Dominus suus, pro quo venit, tali egritudine est gravatus quod illa vice personaliter venire non potest ad dictum servicium faciendum; et tunc admittatur ad servicium faciendum; et percipiet dictus Miles totum feodum predictum, ad opus dicti Domini sui, in forma predicta. Et, si Miles dixerit quod dictus Dominus suus impeditus fuerit per Breve Domini Regis, ad procuracionem Domini Episcopi vel [Successorum] suorum imperpetuum, ipso sciente et consenciente, et Miles hoc, secundum conscienciam suam, jurare voluerit, admittatur ad servicium predictum faciendum, nisi predictus Dominus

[A.D. 1308.] Episcopus contrarium precise jurare voluerit. Quod si predictus Episcopus juraverit, recedat dictus Miles sine aliquo servicio faciendo, vel feodo capiendo illa vice; et predictus Dominus Hugo et heredes sui facient omnia alia servicia predicto Episcopo et Successoribus suis pro predicto Manerio de Slaptone que ad illud pertinent imperpetuum. Si, vero, heredes dicti Hugonis vel successorum suorum, tempore alicujus hujusmodi Intronizacionis, non fuerint plene etatis, vel si plene etatis fuerint et predictum servicium in forma predicta non fecerint, de predicto feodo et vasis argenteis nichil omnino percipient illa vice, nec aliquid aliud, racione Senescalcie predicte vel officii supradicti; nec aliquis alius nomine eorundem. Nec licebit dicto Hugoni, heredibus vel assignatis, in aliquo Festo Intronizacionis Episcopi Exoniensis qui pro tempore fuerit aliquam personam in officio ponere, vel positam amovere, vel ulterius quicquam de dicto Festo per se vel alios intromittere, seu racione predicti officii seu Senescalcie plus exigere vel recipere quam superius est expressum. Et habebunt iidem Dominus Hugo et heredes sui, vel Miles qui pro eo venerit ut predictum est, fenum et avenam pro equis suis et suorum familiarium secum venencium, cum liberacione vini et candelarum prout decet competenter. Et pro hac recognicione et feodo predicto habendo, sine aliqua contradiccione, imperpetuum, predictus Dominus Hugo, pro se et heredibus suis, remisit, relaxavit, et omnino quietum clamavit prefato Domino Episcopo et Successoribus suis omnes alias exacciones, demandas, et calumpnias suas de aliis officiis, feodis, et rebus dictam Senescalciam quoquomodo tangentibus imperpetuum. In quorum omnium testimonium tam predictus Episcopus quam predictus Hugo huic Scripto dentato sigilla sua alternatim apposuerunt; et, ad majorem securitatem, Decanus et Capitulum Exonie, ad rogatum dicti Domini Episcopi, et eciam predicti Domini Hugonis, sigillum suum commune Presentibus est appensum (sic).—Data apud Nywetone Prioris de Plymptone Dominica in crastino Beati Thome Apostoli [22 Dec.], A.D. M°. CCC^mo octavo, et Anno Regni Regis Edwardi, filii Regis Edwardi, secundo. Presentibus Dominis Willelmo Martyn, Philippo de Curtenaye, Thoma de Cayricestre, Stephano de Hackubum, Rogero de Nonant, Thoma de (sic) Archedeakne, Johanne de Buttone, Johanne de Treiagu, Militibus; Roberto de Stokhaye, Johanne de Bittelesgate, Roberto de Upheye, Henrico de Bokerelle, et aliis.

This Document was entered in the same Register as the above (fol. 37), and it belongs to Bishop Brantyngham's time; but being without date it could not be entered in the "Registrum Commune" under its proper year. Dr. Oliver mentions it in his Life of the Bishop, and remarks that "the result of such application does not appear." There can be no doubt that the Pope's answer was unfavourable, for there was never any Appropriation of either Church.

Concerning the Rectories of Bridestowe, in Devon, and St. Breoke, in Cornwall.

Significat Sanctitati vestre devotus orator vester, Thomas, miseracione Divina Ecclesie vestre Exoniensis Episcopus ac Minister humilis, quod, licet ad Collacionem ejusdem plures Ecclesie Parochiales et alia Beneficia pertineant, et dictus Episcopatus, excepta Jurisdiccione Pontificali, in temporalibus penitus consistat, que Sede Exoniensi vacante in [A.D. 1370—1394.] manu Regia detinentur, et sepius eciam, per emulorum Ecclesie incitacionem, Sede plena, in manu Regis capiuntur et multipliciter devastantur, sic quod Episcopus in talibus casibus non habet ubi caput suum reclinet, unica Ecclesia de Teyngtone Episcopi, que valorem annuum triginta marcarum communibus annis non excedit, et non multum ab ingressu sue Diocesis situatur, dumtaxat excepta; et a dicta Ecclesia de Teyngtone Episcopi per centum miliaria usque ad finem sue Diocesis, temporalibus hujusmodi in manu Regis existentibus, domum in qua poterit quiescere propriam nullam habeat; quare supplicat eidem Sanctitati idem orator et Capellanus vester quatinus Ecclesiam Parochialem de Bridestowe, que de Collacione et Patronatu ejusdem et sue Diocesis existit, que triginta marcarum, et Ecclesiam Parochialem de Powetone, alias dictam Nansant, ejusdem Collacionis et Diocesis, que quadraginta marcarum sterlingorum, deductis oneribus supportandis, valores annuos non excedunt, mense sue et Successorum suorum, de benignitate Sedis Apostolice, appropriare dignetur. Ita quod, cedentibus vel decedentibus Rectoribus earumdem Ecclesiarum qui nunc sunt, liceat sibi, vel Successoribus suis, prefatarum Ecclesiarum de Bridestowe et Powtone, alias dicte Nansant, possessionem seu possessiones, Auctoritate Apostolica, apprehendere, et in usus proprios retinere, ac ad mensam Episcopi perpetuo deputare; reservata (sic) pro sustentacionibus Vicariorum dictarum Ecclesiarum futurorum, et oneribus supportandis, congruis porcionibus, quacumque Constitucione Apostolica in contrarium edita non obstante; cum ceteris oportunis clausulis consuetis, ut in forma.

I am indebted to the kindness of the Reverend William Iago, of Bodmin, for a copy of a Licence (temp. Edw. III), which shows that Bishop Grandisson had contemplated the Appropriation of the Rectory of Bridestowe, as well as the Rectories of Bratton[-Clovelly] and Ilsington, to his College of St. Mary of Ottery. Of the three only Ilsington was so appropriated (see Bishop Grandisson's Register, Part I, 133; Part III, 1334). I am informed that the Document (which is in private hands) is beautifully written and has been well preserved. The Great Seal of the King is still attached, and in perfect condition except that the edges have been bruised: it is of green wax and represents the King enthroned, his feet resting on lions, and the sceptre in his right hand. On the reverse he is represented on horseback.

[A.D. 1337-8.] Endorsement:—Licencia appropriandi Ecclesias de Brydestowe, Brattone, et Ilstingstone, Sancte Marie de Otery.

Edwardus, Dei gracia Rex Anglie, Dominus Hibernie, et Dux Aquitanie, omnibus ad quos presentes Littere pervenerint salutem.—Sciatis quod de gracia nostra speciali concessimus et Licenciam dedimus, pro nobis et heredibus nostris, quantum in nobis est, Venerabili Patri, Johanni de Grandissono, Episcopo Exonie, quod ipse Advocaciones Ecclesiarum de Bridestowe, Brattone, et Ilstyngtone, in Comitatu Devonie, cum pertinenciis, dare possit et assignare dilectis nobis Custodi et Canonicis Secularibus Collegii de Otery Sancte Marie, in Comitatu predicto, de novo fundati; habendum et tenendum sibi et successoribus suis, Custodibus et Canonicis Collegii illius, de Capitalibus Dominis feodi illius, per servicia inde debita et consueta, imperpetuum; et eisdem Custodi et Canonicis quod ipsi Advocaciones predictas, cum pertinenciis, a

[A.D. 1337-8] prefato Episcopo recipere, et Ecclesias illas appropriare, et eas sic appropriatas in proprios usus tenere possint sibi et successoribus suis de Capitalibus Dominis feodi illius, per servicia predicta, imperpetuum, sine occasione vel impedimento nostri vel heredum nostrorum, Justiciariorum, Escaetorum, Vicecomitum, aut aliorum ballivorum seu ministrorum nostrorum quorumcumque; Statuto de terris et tenementis ad manum mortuam non ponendis edito non obstante. In cujus rei testimonium has Literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste me ipso apud Westmonasterium, decimo octavo die Februarii, Anno Regni nostri duodecimo [1337-8].—Per Breve de Privato Sigillo.

Concerning the Archdeaconry of Exeter.

It is recorded in Bishop Stafford's Register (page 167) that William Pilton exchanged this Archdeaconry with Dr. Thomas Hendeman for a Prebend in Chichester Cathedral on the 28th of February, 1409-10. His name is omitted in Dr. Oliver's List; and we are told that "Thomas Hendeman occurs [as Archdeacon] 23rd Nov., 1411," the abovementioned Exchange having been overlooked. Le Neve gives the Archdeacon's name, but tells us vaguely that he "exchanged this Dignity for some other preferment, 28th March (sic), 1409." I was obliged to confess that I could "find no record of the date of his Collation." The following extract from the Register of Thomas de Arundelle, Archbishop of Canterbury, Vol. I, fol. 322^{b}, for the discovery of which I am indebted to the kindness of Mr. Baigent, solves the difficulty :—

[A.D. 1408.] Archidiaconatus Exoniensis.—Item, vij^{mo} die mensis Decembris, Anno Domini Millesimo CCCC^{mo} octavo, in Rectoria de Northflete, Dominus contulit Archidiaconatum Exoniensem, vacantem, et ad suam Collacionem jure sibi in ea parte legitime devoluto spectantem, Domino Willelmo Pyltone, capellano, et ipsum Archidiaconum prefecit et instituit Canonice in eodem, cum suis juribus et pertinenciis universis. Et demandavit Literas Installacionis et Induccionis ejusdem Archidiaconatus Decano et Capitulo Ecclesie Cathedralis Exoniensis in forma consueta.

Concerning the Appropriation of the Church of St. Stephen's by Saltash to the College of Windsor.

[I am indebted to Canon Dalton for the Copy of this Document, which is preserved in the Archives of the Dean and Canons of Windsor. It is of special interest, as it belongs to the last year of Brantyngham's Episcopate, and was, doubtless, recorded in the last quaternus of his "Registrum Commune," which has perished.]

Approbacio et Confirmacio Thome, Exoniensis Episcopi, ultime Ordinacionis Vicarie de Saltasshe.

[A.D. 1393.] Omnibus Christi fidelibus presentes Literas inspecturis, Thomas, miseracione Divina Exoniensis Episcopus, salutem in Domino sempiternam. Noverit universitas vestra quod, scrutato Registro bone memorie Domini Johannis de Grandissono, nuper Episcopi Exoniensis, predecessoris nostri immediati, invenimus in eodem, inter cetera, quandam Ordinacionem de et super Vicaria Ecclesie parochialis de Saltesshe, nostre Diocesis, Custodi et Collegio Libere Capelle Regie de Wyndesore appropriate, per Dominum Predecessorem nostrum factam, fuisse et esse in eodem Registro, de verbo in verbum, ad perpetuam rei memoriam, ut sequitur registratam.—Universis Sancte Matris Ecclesie filiis ad quos presentes litere pervenerint, Johannes, miseracione Divina Exoniensis Episcopus, salutem in Domino sempiternam. Licet pridem Vicariam Ecclesie Parochialis Sancti Stephani de Saltesshe, nostre Exoniensis Diocesis, Custodi et Collegio Libere Capelle Regie de Wyndesore appropriate, in diversis rebus altilagii consistere ordinaverimus, et certis oneribus supportandis; quam ultra viginti librarum summam tunc temporis non estimabamus nec adhuc extendere estimamus, prout in quadam nostra Ordinacione alias super hoc facta plenius continetur; porcionem illius augmentandi, diminuendi, interpretandi ac in toto seu in ejus parte immutandi potestate nobis et Successoribus nostris in eadem specialiter reservata; Serenissimus, tamen, Princeps et Dominus noster, Dominus Edwardus, Dei gracia Rex Anglie illustris, pro dicti sui Collegii comodo et honore, ac certitudine porcionis et sustentacionis Vicariorum dicte Ecclesie qui pro tempore erunt, nobis per suas Literas supplicavit quatinus, pro securitate dictorum Custodis et Collegii ac indempnitate Vicariorum dicte Ecclesie qui ad Presentacionem dictorum Custodis et Collegii instituendi erunt in ipsa, et ne forte, ex infortunio, porcio emolumentorum Vicariis dicte Ecclesie applicandorum ad tantam exilitatem contingeret devenire quod non sufficeret eis ad victum, nec ad alia eis imposita onera supportanda; aut alias, ex meliori fortuna, ad tantam accresceret summam quod, contra jus commune, dictorum Custodis et Collegii excederet porcionem, secundum estimacionem nostre Ordinacionis predicte, decerneremus Vicari-

[A.D. 1393.] am illam ad summam viginti librarum fore, juxta ejus verum valorem annuum, ordinandam in pecunia numerata. Nos, itaque, attendentes dicti Domini nostri Regis laudabile propositum in hac parte, et tam utilitate quam securitate Custodis et Collegii predictorum quam Vicariorum de quibus premittitur prospicere cupientes, et ut, pro quiete utriusque Partis cunctis appareat evidenter in qua pecunie summa et valore Vicaria ipsa et Vicariorum porcio congrua consistere debeant, et que ac qualia onera agnoscere debeant et subire, supplicacionibus Regii et beneplacitis obtemperare volentes, Vicariam ipsam ordinamus et Vicariorum porcionem assignamus pariter in hunc modum. In primis, quod Vicarii qui erunt pro tempore ejusdem Ecclesie habeant et percipiant, nomine Vicarie sue, unam aulam, unam cameram, unam coquinam cum bracinio, et unum stabulum pro duobus equis, de Rectoria Ecclesie supradicte. Volumus, eciam, quod Vicarii ejusdem Ecclesie habeant porcionem congruam, ex qua sustentari, et onera dicta Ecclesie incumbencia per modum subscriptum valeant supportare; quam ad viginti librarum summam, vel ad ejus valorem in alia usuali moneta, Canonice assignamus, equis porcionibus ad quatuor anni terminos principales in pecunia numerata, de fructibus dicte Ecclesie, per manus dictorum Custodis et Collegii, seu illorum Procuratorum, persolvendam ibidem. Et, si dicti Custos et Collegium in solucione predicta ultra unius mensis spacium ab aliquo termino negligentes fuerint aut remissi, tunc bene liceat nobis et successoribus nostris, vel, Sede vacante, Custodi in Spiritualibus tunc ibidem, omnes fructus dicte Ecclesie sequestrare, et sub arto custodire sequestro, donec Vicario qui fuerit pro tempore, una cum arreragiis, plenarie fuerit satisfactum. Divina per totam Parochiam, ubi Rectores dicte Ecclesie Divina celebrari facere tenebantur aut eciam celebrare, Vicarii qui erunt pro tempore suis propriis sumptibus faciant celebrari. Habeat, insuper, Vicarius qui pro tempore fuerit aream pro orto competentem. Domos suas sibi assignatas sustentabit, et quociens opus fuerit re-edificabit. Vinum, ceram, thus, et panem Vicarii inveniant pro sacramento Altaris. Procuraciones Archidiaconi et Synodalia persolvant, et Libros ligari faciant quociens Ecclesia indigebit. Cetera omnia onera dicte Ecclesie incumbencia, quocumque nomine censeantur, superius non expressa, Custos et Collegium predicti subibunt. In cujus rei testimonium sigillum nostrum Presentibus est appensum. Data in Manerio nostro de Chuddeleghe octavo decimo die mensis Februarii, Anno Domini Millesimo CCC^mo sexagesimo primo, et Consecracionis nostre tricesimo quinto.—Hanc, vero, Ordinacionem, per prefatum Predecessorem nostrum, ut prefertur, factam, ex certa nostra sciencia approbamus ac eciam confirmamus; ac, insuper, quamcumque aliam Ordinacionem de et super porcione Vicarii dicte Vicarie de Saltesshe per ipsam Predecessorem nostrum, sub quacumque forma et expressione verborum primitus conceptam, huic contrariam vel adversam penitus revocamus, vacuamus, cassamus, ac eciam irritamus; quinymmo cassam, vacuam, et irritam nunciamus, et nullius prorsus existere volumus firmitatis. In quorum omnium et singulorum premissorum testimonium atque fidem pleniorem, tam nos, Thomas, Exoniensis Episcopus antedictus, quam nos, Decanus et Capitulum Ecclesie Exoniensis memorate, de communi consensu pariter et assensu, sigilla nostra Presentibus duximus apponenda. Data quoad nos, Thomam, Episcopum antedictum, in Manerio nostro de Clyst, vicesimo quinto die mensis Augusti, Anno Domini Millesimo CCC^mo nonogesimo tercio, et Consecracionis nostre anno vicesimo quarto; et quoad nos, Decanum et Capitulum, in Domo nostra Capitulari Exonie, vicesimo sexto die mensis et anni proximo supradictorum.

[A.D. 1393.] The Bishop's Seal (a representation of which is given in the Frontispiece to Part I) is attached to the Deed by a cord of green silk. It is a fine impression in red wax. St. Peter sits under a canopy in the centre, wearing the tiara; his right hand raised in benediction, in his left hand a key. Above, in the centre of the canopy, is a small niche, or panel, containing a figure of the Blessed Virgin carrying the Holy Child; and under the figure of St. Peter, in another niche, is a representation of the Bishop in the attitude of prayer, vested and mitred, and holding his Pastoral Staff. On either side of this niche is a shield of arms, both of which are much rubbed and all but obliterated; it is possible, however, to trace in the shield on the right the Arms of the Family of Brantyngham—"Sable, a fesse subcrenellé between three Katherine wheels or." The other shield may have been of the Arms of the See. The Legend, along the border of the Seal, is "Sigillum Thome Dei gracia Exoniensis Episcopi."

The Seal of Bishop Grandisson (obverse and reverse), as appended to another of the Windsor Deeds, is also represented in the Frontispiece. An accurate and minutely detailed description of both seals, as used separately, by Henry Adam de Lyndesheye, Notary-Publick, will be found in that Bishop's Register, pp. 1349, 1350,—"que sigilla," he tells us, "bene novi ego Notarius subscriptus." This was in 1345. It will be observed that, in the case of the Windsor Deed (dated some sixteen years later), an impression of the Bishop's signet-ring appears at the bottom, on the wax guard. Close inspection shews that it represents the Blessed Virgin bending over the Holy Child, Who rests on her left arm. Under the figures is a small shield, badly rubbed, but it is possible to trace the "bend" of the Bishop's arms. The Legend, which surrounds the group, has been read "Prosum, Mater Misericordie." The second and third words are quite distinct, but the first word is hard to read; "sum" is clear, but I doubt the "Pro." It is, I think, possible, and I may add more probable, that we should read "Ego sum." The ring must have been a work of great beauty, the figures and the lettering being artistically engraved, the drapery most graceful, and the face of the Blessed Virgin (which is quite perfect) of singular comeliness.

VIII.

Bishop Grandisson corrects the Epistles and Gospels by an ancient Text.

The following most interesting "Note" (for a copy of which I am indebted to Professor Meyer, of Paris), belongs, apparently, to Bishop Brantyngham's time. It occurs on the second fly-leaf of MS. No. 328 in the Library of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, at the beginning of the MS. (which contains a "Summa Confessorum" by Bartholomew of Pisa), and is in a hand of the end of the Fourteenth Century. It will be observed that Grandisson is referred to as "late Bishop of Exeter."

Dominus Johannes de Grandissono, quondam Episcopus Exoniensis, correxit Epistolas et Evangelia ejusdem Ecclesie juxta exemplar textus Evangeliorum Offe, quondam Regis Anglorum, qui erat scriptus tempore Caroli Magni post exemplar Beati Jeronimi, quod habetur extra Portam Rome in Ecclesia Sancti Pauli; et misit eadem Evangelia, correcta, in diversis libris, ad omnes Ecclesias Collegiatas suc Diocesis, tam in textu Evangeliorum quam in pronunciacione et accentu; inspectis eciam libris Ordinum tam Predicatorum quam Minorum, tam Parisius quam in Anglia: sic inquiens,—Que per medium trahuntur omnino non leguntur; que, vero, subtus trahuntur aut non sunt de textu Doctorum aut non habentur in Libro Offe Regis; et ideo caveat quilibet, nisi melior aut pericior Theologus sit, ne aliquid immutet, ne sub colore corrigendi corrumpat; sed attendat quod idem Pater non nisi per magnos labores, superflua resecando et diminuta suplendo, eadem emendavit.

Can the Offa MS. be traced? It will be seen that Bishop Grandisson had access to it some time between 1326 and 1370; for he used it when employed in revising the Epistles and Gospels for his Church of Exeter and for all the Collegiate Churches within his Diocese. What has become of the Copy which he used? I shall be indeed grateful to any of my readers who can throw light on a subject so interesting. Be it observed that, little by little, evidence accumulates to shew that our great Bishop, perhaps the greatest that ever sat on the Throne of Leofric, was the most laborious and self-sacrificing of men, a Scholar and Theologian of the first rank, a faithful Shepherd of souls, wholly devoted to the work of his Sacred Office.

NOTE.

It will be observed that the reference-figures in the Index of BENEFICES are not arranged consecutively. This is due to the fact that they refer to several separate Registers, while, for obvious reasons, they are arranged in chronological order. No fewer than seven folios have been cut out of the Register of Institutions, with the result that many Entries have been lost irrevocably. In most of these cases, however, the names of the Incumbents and the approximate dates of their Institution have been recovered from the Register of Commissions and of Royal Letters, and from numerous incidental references in the "Registrum Commune." See page 138.

Deans: 304, 394. [Robert Sumpter was collated by Bishop Grandisson in 1365 (Register, p. 1497). There is no record of the Collation of his successor, Thomas de Walkyngtone; but he was Provost of Glasney from 1375 (see p. 38) till 1378, when Adam Sparke succeeded to that Office (see p. 54); we may, therefore, safely conclude that he became Dean in the latter year (see p. 54, under Colaton-Raleigh). His successor, Ralph Tregrisiou, occurs as Dean, according to Le Neve in June, 1384;

according to Oliver in June, 1385; but they give no references. He was, however, certainly Dean in 1385 (see pp. 91, 170, 684)].
